Nazis Use Naval Tactics In Attempt To Block Raid

LONDON, Jan. 12.—German pilots, misled by American tactics into believing they were meeting the first U.S. daylight smash against Berlin, were tricked yesterday into revealing strategy and weapons they have been carefully saving for the "pay-off fight" in the European skies.

There were indications that the German fighter pilots—fanatical in their zeal to protect Berlin—fought among themselves to get the first crack at isolated and unescorted groups of U.S. heavy bombers. The new tactics the Nazis brought out for this blazing battle over northwestern Germany was an application of the principles of naval manoeuvres to air warfare. They used smoke screens just as destroyers do in an attempt to mask the movements of a fleet. They wheeled into line, just as battleships do, to bring the full power of rocket broadsides against the Flying Fortresses and Liberators.

Some German Messerschmitt 109's used belly tanks that enabled them to harry the American raiders all the way from the North Sea coast to the target and back again.

Other German fighters hurled barrages of rockets at the American formations, and one turret gunner reported rocket anti-aircraft shells, but could not elaborate.

Fuehrer Seeks Immediate Jap Blow at Russia

By LEON KAY

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

CAIRO, Jan. 12.—Well-informed sources said today that Adolf Hitler is doing his utmost to persuade Japan to attack Russia at once in an effort to avert a Nazi disaster on the Soviet front.

Informants said Hitler, in a series of recent conferences with the Japanese ambassador to Germany, urged Japan to strike immediately arguing that sooner or later the Soviets would join Great Britain and the United States in the war against the Japanese.

Hitler was said to have proposed a "Russian Pearl Harbor" as a diversionary measure aimed at drawing Red army strength from the offensive against Germany in the west.

Usually informed quarters understood that Hitler insisted in his meetings with ambassador Hiroshi Oshima that Japan launch an attack on Vladivostok and on the Manchurian frontier, especially at Changkufeng, the scene of a border "incident" in July, 1938.

Informants said Hitler based the main weight of his proposal on the contention that eventual war between Japan and Russia was inevitable and the Japanese should seize the advantage of a surprise attack.

Hitler, according to reports in informed quarters, feels that the time has come to play the last Axis card. He was represented as believing that a Japanese attack on Russia might counteract the effects of a second front and cut off Vladivostok as a source of supplies to Russia.

U.S. Citizen Faces Espionage Charges

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(AP)—A 44-year-old naturalized American citizen, said by the Federal Bureau of Investigation to have been born a German count, was held in $25,000 bail today on charges of conspiracy to violate wartime espionage laws.

The prisoner, William Albrecht von Pressentin Gennant von Rauter, wept last night as a plea of not guilty was entered for him before U.S. Commissioner Jacob A. Visel.

F.B.I. Director J. Edgar Hoover said in Washington that the count was trained in secret writing methods in Germany and sent the Nazis information on American airplanes, ammunition, ship and explosive production as well as information on contemplated 1942 Allied invasion plans.

Hoover said he had worked here as a brokerage firm employee, financial expert and had been employed in the New York state unemployment service and by the department of agriculture.

Germans Warned Potato Shortage Serious in Reich

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(AP)—The Berlin radio, in a domestic broadcast reported by U.S. government monitors, warned the German people today that a current potato shortage had made sharp conservation measures necessary to provide sufficient seed potatoes for spring planting. The broadcast blamed the shortage on "the extraordinary drought" of 1943.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—Gen. Nikolai F. Vatutin's first army of the Ukraine has stormed and captured Sarny, key rail junction 36 miles inside old Poland, cutting the German-held trunk railway linking the southern and northern fronts, Soviet premier Josef Stalin announced today.

Stalin issued a special order of the day commending Vatutin for the capture yesterday of Sarny, which he called a "large rail junction and important German defence base."

The vanguard of Russian forces driving far west of the pre-war Polish frontier stormed into Sarny and crushed German resistance after forcing the formidable Sleser river fortifications.

By capturing Sarny, on the Wilno-Rowne and Kiev-Warsaw railroads, the Russians forced the Nazis to rely on the road through Kowel 82 miles westward for lateral transport.

Moscow's delayed dispatches reporting that the Russians were closing in on Sarny from three directions said other Soviet forces to the southeast were massing before the Bug river for a full-dress push toward Rumania.

Simultaneously the Soviet army organ Red Star said the Russians

Germans Lose Last Outpost Near Cassino

By JOSEPH DYNAN

ALGIERS, Jan. 12.—(AP)—The Anglo-American 5th Army has seized more high ground in Italy, in its steady progress toward Cassino, key to the Rome highway. Allied headquarters announced today.

The German communiqué said the Nazis had been thrown out of Cervaro, fortified village four miles east southeast of Cassino on the Rome road "after hard fighting" and also lost a mountain top to the northeast.

Allied headquarters did not immediately confirm the capture of Cervaro, but Allied troops have been reported in its immediate vicinity, closing in from the south and the northeast.

Cervaro was the last village outpost guarding Cassino.

'Richest Girl in World' Charged With Infidelity

ELIZABETH, N.J., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Counsel for James H. R. Cromwell charged in court today that the former Doris Duke Cromwell had turned him out of her home in favor of an unidentified member of the British parliament.

"The scene of refined cruelty was reached," James E. Toolan told advisory master Douglas Herr in chancery court, "when Mr. Cromwell's valet, calling at Duke Farms for Mr. Cromwell's clothes, was compelled to wait several hours, until noon time, because Mr. Cromwell's bedroom was then occupied by his successor in his wife's affection, a truant member of the British parliament, who found Duke Farms as well as Mrs. Cromwell's home in Honolulu more relaxing than London, then undergoing the fury of Teutonic bombing."

"She saw no virtue in concealing her current affection," said Toolan, state senator from Middlesex County.

Toolan also charged that the former Doris Duke, tobacco heiress often referred to as the wealthiest girl in the world, had "humiliated" her husband while he was minister

Minister Says:

Plan to Alter Academic Year This Province

School holidays in Alberta in 1944 may run from the middle of July until the beginning of October, it was indicated in Edmonton Wednesday by Hon. Solon E. Low, provincial treasurer and minister of education.

"It looks now as if the consensus in the province is that the holiday season should begin at the middle of July, and should end close to the first of October," the minister said. He indicated that legislation to that effect will be placed before the next session of the legislature, which is to open Feb. 10.

The summer holiday season in Alberta, prior to the summer of 1943, has always covered the two months of July and August.

At the 1943 session of the legislature, the late Hon. William Aberhart, premier and minister of education, introduced the Operation of Schools (War) Act, which extended 1943 holidays to approximately three and one-half months, from July 1 to Oct. 11. The act provided that for the duration, schools were to remain open in July, and then start the summer vacation.

REASON FOR CHANGE

Reason for the change of holiday season was that student and teacher help was urgently required on the farms last year, because of the labor shortage. Since it became effective, the act has been the target of considerable criticism from various sections of the province.

Only last week, the department of education was approached by a delegation from the Alberta School Trustees' Association, which asked that "for the duration of the war, the Alberta school year should end on or about July 15 and begin on or about Oct. 1."

Regulations governing the school holiday period can be altered only by an act of the Legislative Assembly.

Benito Grants A Last 'Favor' To Son-in-Law

BERNE, Jan. 12.—Benito Mussolini, in a last ironic gesture to his son-in-law, traitor to Fascism, granted Count Galeazzo Ciano the privilege of facing the firing squad which executed him at Verona yesterday, frontier reports said today.

The first details of Ciano's execution said he was shot after Marshal Emilio de Bono and three other members of the Fascist grand council who voted last July to depose Mussolini.

Ciano, former Italian foreign minister, refused a bandage for his eyes after a special Mussolini dispensation enabled him to escape the ignominy of being shot in the back, the frontier reports reported.

Greatest Russian Offensive Opened Six Months Ago

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(CP)—Six months ago today, on July 12, 1943, the Soviet army launched the offensive which has practically swept the Germans out of Russia. The Germans had opened a drive five days previously near Belgorod in the apparent hope of dealing the Russians a death blow. Minor gains were scored and then Premier Stalin gave the signal for the counter-offensive.

Organizer

Senator Wishart McL. Robertson, President of the National Liberal Federation, who has issued a call to all provincial Liberal organizations throughout Canada to proceed at once with organization plans.

Organize

Call Issued to Liberal Groups Across Canada

OTTAWA, Jan. 12.—The new headquarters and officers of the National Liberal Federation have issued a call to all Provincial Liberal organizations to organize their province and constituencies without delay.

The Federation urges that these organizations start immediately with the effective presentation of the Liberal position to the people of Canada, so that the Liberal party may proceed at once with plans to maintain production in the post-war period as near to that of the war period as is humanly possible.

BUSINESS ORGANIZING

Senator Wishart McL. Robertson, President of the National Liberal Federation, points out that the National Progressive Conservative Association has been busy organizing throughout Canada since the party was shaken up in December, 1942.

The Co-operative Commonwealth Federation has also been busy engaged in organization work on a large scale for more than a year now and, according to Senator Robertson, it becomes the bounden duty of the Liberal party, which has up to the moment abstained entirely from political organization, to proceed as swiftly and effectively as possible to place its position before the electors of Canada.

PREPARING TO SERVE

Senator Robertson stated that, while the Liberal government, charged with the responsibility of prosecuting the war, may have deemed it its duty to try to keep public attention focussed on the supreme task of winning the war, its opponents have been making a great mistake if they have been thinking the government has no plans for the future. Both the government and the Liberal party are preparing to serve Canada in the future, and to do it effectively and well.

Mussolini Plans Continue Purge

By FRANK BRUTTO

AT THE SWISS-ITALIAN FRONTIER, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Execution of Count Ciano and four other members of the former Fascist grand council on charges of treason to the Mussolini government was viewed here today as part of a purge directed at all who opposed Italy's continuance as a partner of Germany.

Announcement said that provincial trials of "traitors" in Nazi-occupied northern Italy would start next Saturday.

The BBC said today that "75 prominent Fascists have been assassinated in northern Italy by Italian patriots" in the last 10 days, and "another wave of strikes is sweeping occupied Italy, the third outbreak in four weeks."

Subsistence Rates For Canada Army Not Being Raised

OTTAWA, Jan. 12.—(CP)—Defence headquarters said today in a statement there was "absolutely no foundation" for a London, Ont., report that an increase in subsistence rates to all ranks of the Canadian Army was under consideration.

A London dispatch last night credited the information to authorities at Military District No. 1 headquarters at London.

American Losses 59 Bombers and 5 Fighters in Attack

By WALTER CRONKITE

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1944, by British United Press

LONDON, Jan. 12.—Sixty-four American planes—59 heavy bombers and five fighters—were lost yesterday in one of the biggest air battles of the war over Germany, in which U.S. gunners alone shot down more than 100 Nazi interceptor planes, it was announced officially tonight.

More than 700 Flying Fortresses and Liberators, escorted by hundreds of Thunderbolts, Lightnings and new-type, long-range fighters, attacked German fighter assembly plants at Oschersleben, Halberstadt and Brunswick, west of Berlin, "with excellent results," a communique reported.

It was indicated that for the first time in this war American daylight raiders penetrated the Berlin defence zone.

A feint toward Berlin loosed the full fury of the German air force in defence of the capital, and scores of fierce battles were fought in the skies five miles over the Reich.

The loss of 59 heavy bombers was one short of the U.S. Air Force's record setback. Sixty were lost in a raid on Schweinfurt Oct. 14.

At Oschersleben, 85 miles southwest of Berlin, the bombers scored direct hits on machine shops and other factory installations, turning out Focke-Wulf 190 fighters.

PLANTS HARD HIT

At Halberstadt in the same region a plant making parts of Junkers planes was hard hit. At Brunswick, 120 miles west of Berlin and 30 miles west of Magdeburg, two of three main assembly plants producing Messerschmitt 110's were destroyed and the third badly damaged.

The German high command claimed 136 American planes were destroyed, including 124 four-motored bombers, in the great battle fought five miles above the Reich.

Obviously believing the great aerial onslaught to be the first American daylight thrust at Berlin, the German high command

TCA Lancasters Set New Record

MONTREAL, Jan. 12.—(CP)—Two Lancasters, operated by Trans-Canada Air Lines in the Canadian government Trans-Atlantic service, today set a new record for a Montreal to Great Britain flight, it was announced here.

They arrived in Great Britain early today after having respectively left here 11 hours and 16 minutes and 11 hours and 14 minutes before. The previous record, set last November by a British Overseas Airways Corporation Liberator piloted by Capt. R. Allen was 11 hours and 35 minutes.

Officials of the Northwest Staging Route in Edmonton have been informed of new regulations covering all flying operations in the northwest. Fit. Lt. K. S. Langfelt, adjutant at headquarters of the route said Wednesday.

Commercial companies, such as C.P. Air Lines, which have been operating daily passenger and mail services to the Yukon, Alaska, and points in the Northwest Territories, will continue operations as usual, being specified in the Ottawa order as carrying on operations that are highly necessary to the war effort.

All other persons or companies operating planes to the north, in the area designated, must make application through the Northwest Staging Route headquarters.

Government to Pay Premiums For Good Hogs

annually was required from Canada to maintain the British four-ounce weekly ration.

COST OF PREMIUMS

Mr. Gardiner said that on the basis of the 1942 hog deliveries, the estimated cost of the premiums in a year would run from $10,000,000 to $12,000,000.

In approving the premium payment for top-quality animals, the government took the position that the proposed price for export bacon in 1944 and 1945 of $22.50 per 100 pounds at the Canadian seaboard could not be increased without endangering the present domestic price ceiling for pork.

The order said it was recommended that the minimum quantity Canada should undertake to supply annually during the calendar years 1944 and 1945 to the United Kingdom be 500,000,000 pounds.

Mr. Gardiner said that on Oct. 22 he announced a new contract for 1944 and 1945 which had been "misrepresented" as one for a minimum of 450,000,000 pounds of bacon for Britain in 1944. There was no such arrangement. His announcement had said that the contract was for 900,000,000 pounds for two years.

ENCOURAGE FARMERS

The suggestion that Canadian hog production might be dropping off in the latter part of 1944 had raised some concern in the United Kingdom that supplies might be low at the end of this year and in 1945. This has led to discussions of the long-term contract. If the contract were extended to four years, "this should encourage farmers to produce for an assured market," the minister said.

Mr. Gardiner said that all possible speed would be made with arrangements to have the premium payments available soon. The premium on high-grade animals would be payable direct to the producer until six months after the war and the trade would be asked to pay for hogs on their actual market value.

CHANGES FOR BETTER

The system of discounts for poor quality animals had been generally criticized, the minister said. Changes for the better would be planned.

Mr. Gardiner said he had representations from produced organizations in every part of Canada urging changes. The new system of premiums paid by the Dominion would be tried out during the remainder of the war period during which the government is committed to assist financially in keeping up food production.

In the $3 premium for grade "A" and $2 for grade "B" hogs the government was applying the same principle to the improvement of quality hogs as it had applied to cheese in the spring of 1939 at his suggestion and which had brought "remarkable results."

The Canadian meat board, the agricultural food board and their advisory committees upon which producers, processors and marketing organizations are represented will be called in at once to discuss the whole question of application of prices to different grades of hogs.

Mr. Gardiner said hogs now were being marketed so fast there was difficulty in handling them, but prices held because of the British contract.

HEAVY RUN

In the first week of this year, slaughtering totalled 217,000 head against 147,000 in the corresponding period last year. These marketings represented more than the number required to maintain the British ration requirements at present, and it was estimated that the heavy run would continue until about the middle of the year.

Home consumption rose as high as 83,000 head in one week in November and was about 58,000 in the first week of this year.

About 90,000 head weekly were required to supply 500,000,000 pounds of bacon to Britain annually.

"What we want to ensure is that production is maintained in the later months," said Mr. Gardiner.

232 Cargo Vessels

Built in Canada Since War's Start

OTTAWA, Jan. 12.—(CP)—Deliveries by Canadian shipyards of cargo ships during the war reached 232 at Dec. 31, 1943, munitions department officials said yesterday.

Of these 219 were in the 10,000-ton class—152 of them made in western shipyards and 67 in eastern yards. Thirteen 4,700-ton ships were delivered from eastern yards.

Details of naval shipbuilding were not disclosed but Munitions Minister Howe said recently that more than 500 naval vessels, ranging from patrol boats to a destroyer, have been turned out by Canadian shipyards since the outbreak of war.

Uniform Rates

OTTAWA, Jan. 12.—(CP)—Uniform wage rates in Ontario and Quebec shipyards were ordered today by the National War Labor board in a direction affecting more than 20,000 shipyard workers.

SELF-STYLED 'CRIMINAL' 103, DIES A HERO

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Stephen Dutton, who proudly claimed to be 103 years old, the oldest criminal in New York state and a friend of President Lincoln, went to a lonely Potter's Field grave Monday.

Steve, who told of exploits on a magnificent scale, died a hero. Severely burned rescuing his cats and dogs from his blazing shack in Brooklyn, he entered hospital for treatment on Christmas Day and succumbed to pneumonia two days later. No one claimed the body.

His last brush with the law was in 1943. Dutton was charged with grand larceny in the appropriation of a three-ton paper-cutting machine. As a fourth offender, he faced life imprisonment.

The charge was dismissed.

were bent on the "utter defeat of the enemy by the destruction or seizure of all his material and the annihilation or capture of all of his men."

The fall of Sarny was fore-shadowed yesterday by Moscow's announcement of the capture of the rail towns of Strelsk, six miles to the north, and Nemovichi, eight miles to the south.

"Express my gratitude to your troops for their perfect military operations," Stalin told Vatutin. He ordered them saluted with 12 salvos of Moscow's 124 victory cannon.

MOSCOW, Jan. 12.—Red Star, official army organ, reported today that the Soviet offensive on the Ukrainian front was developing steadily with growing force and scale, with the goal of crushing the enemy by the destruction or seizure of all his material and the annihilation or capture of all his men.

Russia has all the necessities for achieving the complete victory, Red Star said, with the Red army fully equipped and competent to carry out the swift and decisive task of "encirclement and annihilation."

(A German communiqué acknowledged "heavy defensive battles" on the southwestern rim of the Soviet salient before the Bug River defenses, as well as in half a dozen other strategic sectors.)

An Izvestia correspondent reported the capricious weather was hampering the Soviet campaign in the western Ukraine. Rising temperatures converted snow into icy slush.

HEAVIER RESISTANCE

Front dispatches said German resistance was stiffening all around the 350-mile 1st Ukrainian Army front, stretching from the Sarny area to the approaches to Rumania, following the arrival of German reserves to fill the gaps in Germany's battered panzer and infantry divisions.

The weight and frequency of counter-attacks were stepped up especially around Sarny and northeast of Shepetovka, the latter a five-way railway junction at the heart of the Ukrainian front.

At the same time, the army organ Red Star said, but nowhere halted the onrushing Soviets.

Battles were reported raging day and night with the Germans attempting to bite into the Soviet flanks to cut off Red Army vanguards from masses of reserves streaming up from the rear.

FALL IS IMMINENT

The capture of the railway towns of Strelsk, six miles north of Sarny and 39 miles inside old Poland, and Nemovichi, eight miles south of Sarny, yesterday was believed to have sealed the doom of the communications centre.

Both towns were on the Wilno-Rowne railway and their occupation virtually split the German armies in the Ukraine off from those in White Russia, forcing the enemy to fall back 82 miles to Kowel for the next north-south communications line between the two fronts.

Guerrilla units aided advance guards of Gen. Nikolai F. Vatutin's 1st Ukrainian army in the capture of Strelsk and Nemovichi while the main column pushed along the Kiev-Warsaw railway, which crosses the Wilno-Rowne line at Sarny, only a few miles east of the junction. Eight hundred German officers and men were killed.

CAPTURE 30 TOWNS

Other elements of Vatutin's army smashed enemy resistance below Novograd Volynski, 70 miles south-east of Sarny, and captured more than 30 towns and villages in foraging to within 12 miles northeast of Shepetovka, five-way railroad junction guarding the approaches to Rovno, German administrative centre for the Ukraine.

The Russians cut the north-south road connecting the Rovno highway with Shepetovka and a series of other roads on both sides of the Novograd Volynski-Shepetovka railway.

Senior Named As Assistant To Mackenzie

OTTAWA, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Appointment of C. N. Senior, private secretary to Pensions Minister Mackenzie for the past eight years, as executive assistant to the minister, was announced today.

Mr. Senior also has been appointed executive secretary to the general advisory committee on demobilization and re-establishment, which reports to a cabinet committee of the same name. Mr. Mackenzie is chairman of the cabinet committee.

The announcement was made by Mr. Mackenzie, who said the appointments had been necessitated by the "rapidly expanding responsibilities" of the department of pensions and national health.

WORK INCREASING

"The many new activities connected with the rehabilitation of ex-servicemen and other post-war problems have increased the burden of work in the minister's office to the point where additional assistance is required," he added.

Miss Audrey Dixon, associate private secretary for the past four years, has been appointed private secretary to Mr. Mackenzie.

James Allen Macdonald of Vancouver, has been appointed associate private secretary and will assume his duties immediately. He is the son of the late Chief Justice M. A. Macdonald of British Columbia.

BOMBS HIT BERLIN

Brig-Gen. Robert F. Travis of Savannah, Ga., who commanded an American division which bombed a key target, said U.S. bombers undoubtedly entered the capital's defence zone. Swedish reports said some bombs fell on Berlin.

The Berlin radio quoted military sources that the German "successes" were "not the result of a new air defence system, but further development of the so-called hand-to-hand tactics, whereby the U.S. formations were passed on from one defence station to the next."

A Berlin spokesman quoted in an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Stockholm said Berlin "clearly was the original objective," but some of the bombers went to Magdeburg, 75 miles southwest of Berlin, and Halberstadt, another 30 miles southwest. He added the raiders "were driven across the sky like game before beaters in a constant merry-go-round of dogfights over the countryside."

The Nazi command threw into the struggle "destroyer" smoke screens and broadside rocket shells in a desperate attempt to check the hundreds of Flying Fortresses and Liberators flanked by more hundreds of Thunderbolts and Lightnings as well as a new type of long range fighter.

CLAIMS INCREASED

A special announcement from Adolf Hitler's headquarters last night claimed that 123 American planes, "most of them four-engine bombers," were shot down out of the hundreds that raked industrial and communications targets in northwestern Germany, but the official DNB agency boosted the figure to 136 this morning.

Two German fighters were known definitely to be lost. Hitler's announcement said, and "seven more crews are missing."

An American announcement last night said strong forces of Flying Fortresses and Liberators with fighter escort fought a three-hour running battle against "vicious and determined" German interceptors and returning crewmen said the combat was reminiscent of that on the Schweinfurt raid Oct. 14, during which 60 American bombers were lost, the largest toll to date.

The Germans threw into the battle virtually every type of plane they could muster, including some that appeared to be converted transports. American airmen said the Germans attacked in waves of as many as 30 and cut through the heart of the bomber formations in defiance of the escorts.

Danger of New War In 30 Years Is Seen

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Capt. John Dugdale, a Labor member of the British parliament, yesterday predicted another war in 30 years if the United States, Britain and Russia fail "to establish a suitable world police force and solve international trade problems satisfactorily."

Dugdale, former secretary to Clement Attlee, deputy prime minister, urged at a press conference contributions by all the United Nations to an international police force and a new system of world commerce, "neither free trade nor a system of tariff walls."

He proposed that private imports and exports be eliminated and that each government act as seller and buyer of goods exchanged with other countries.

"Until we can get a satisfactory system of trade to replace the scramble for markets we have had until now," he said, "there will always be a tendency for the dissatisfied countries to try to obtain satisfaction by going to war."

Sailor, Hold-Up Victim, Shows Gang 'Big Time'

OAKLAND, Calif., Jan. 12.—(CP)—Frank W. Stark, 18-year-old seaman from Saginaw, Mich., accepted a ride with four civilian youths, but—

"Put 'em up sailor, this is a stick-up," one of them said. "A stick-up? Bah!" Stark replied. "If you're in that line, why don't you go big-time? I'll show you how. I was a gunman in Chicago. Let me have the road and we'll go places."

The boys gave Stark the gun. The car neared a bar. "That's the place we want. I'll go in and ease the joint. You wait."

Stark got out, told the bartender to call police, went back to the car and told one of the boys to come in "so I can explain the layout."

Then he went for the other three "so we can pull the job." They all went inside. The bartender was guarding the first boy, and Stark pulled out the boys' own gun, holding them until police arrived.

"And they didn't even take the $30 I had," he chuckled. "No, I've never lived in Chicago."

Artillery duels and patrol activity marked both the 5th and 8th Army fronts.

In the air war Allied bombers struck a new day-and-night double blow into the Balkans, battering Piraeus, the port of Athens in Greece, in heavy force.

The one-two punch was started by Four-engine American bombers in daylight, followed by R.A.F. Wellingtons swooping in at night. Sofia, capital of Bulgaria, was hammered Monday by the same kind of swift blows.

The British destroyers Troubridge and Tumult prowling the Adriatic coast Sunday night damaged railway trains by gunfire and hit a schooner, driving it aground. Their guns also battered San Benedetto.

WITH CANADIANS IN ITALY, Jan. 12.—(CP)—A minor war of nerves is being waged on the Adriatic front in Italy where Canadians facing the German defences southeast of the Arielli river are awaiting the right moment to resume their offensive towards Pescara.

There has been no major action since capture of "Point 59" or as the Italians know it, Torre Mucchio, but the enemy between the Canadians and the Arielli have known no rest.

Patrols are probing their lines day and night and frequent artillery concentrations are forcing the Germans to keep under cover.

Committee Polled Dewey, Willkie Top Choices For Republican Nomination

By JAN HARTNETT AND WILLIAM J. CONWAY
(Copyright, 1944, by The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Wendell Willkie topped possible contenders for the Republican United States presidential nomination today in a poll taken among members of the party's national committee.

The test of sentiment also disclosed that a large number had not yet decided which candidate they would prefer.

Tabulation of the survey made by the Associated Press during the committee's meeting here Monday and Tuesday showed these results:

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York 21; Wendell Willkie 21; Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio 5; Lt. Gov. Harold E. Stassen 4; Senator Robert Taft of Ohio 2; Gov. Dwight H. Green of Illinois 2; Gov. Earl Warren of California 2; Gen. Douglas MacArthur 1; Dewey or Willkie 1.

23 OPEN-MINDED

The poll also brought out that 23 still were open-minded on the subject.

The committee has 106 members. Ninety-five were represented at the meeting—76 in person and 19 by proxies.

While many of the committee will be delegates to the national convention, the selection of the nominee will be up to the full assembly of 1,059 delegates.

Meanwhile, Republican committee members studied President Roosevelt's new "bill of rights," proclaimed in his message to congress, and labelled it a preview of the 1944 Democratic platform.

OTTAWA, Jan. 12.—(CP)—The agricultural food board yesterday authorized changes in regulations to permit milk processors, cheese factories and creameries to purchase or receive milk from the fluid milk market when offered.

Previously, permits had to be obtained before a change was made by a shipper in the plant to which he took his product. The new regulation facilitates the utilization of surplus milk, which officials said accumulated from time to time, by permitting plants to purchase it without encountering permit difficulties.

Man Remanded Two Charges At Athabasca

ATHABASCA, Jan. 12.—John Chudek, 47-year-old Athabasca district resident, was remanded here Tuesday, for trial in the supreme court by Magistrate J. J. Mutch on charges of attempting to murder his wife, and Joe Kendzera, by setting fire to the latter's home. There is also a charge of arson.

The Kendzera home was fired with two bottles of gasoline, May 5, 1943, R.C.M.P. alleged. Chudek hid in a shack, about 50 miles north of Athabasca, where R.C.M.P. found him on New Year's Day, about nine months after the fire.

The Chudek family came from Czechoslovakia to the Richmond Park area in 1927. There were 12 children, whom, after family difficulties, were taken from the parents, and the couple separated. Mrs. Chudek then went to keep house for Kendzera.

ALLEGED STATEMENT

A statement, said to have been made by the accused, showed that the two bottles of gasoline were purchased in Edmonton. About 11:30 p.m., May 5, he crept into the Kendzera home and saw his wife. Leaving the house, he padlocked the doors, and, using the gasoline, fired the premises.

He was hiding nearby as his wife and Kendzera got out of the building and subdued the flames, after which he ran away.

"We hope there will be some change in the situation with regard to light steel within the next three months," Mr. Foreman said. "Production will be increased as more material becomes available. Our problem is now largely one of manpower."

Many Oppose Service Plan Of President

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST
WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's request for enactment of national service legislation—under which the services of all men in the United States from 18 to 65 and all women from 18 to 50, with certain exceptions, would be subject to government call—split Congress today and foreshadowed one of the most bitter fights of this election year.

A cross-section of sentiment in both Senate and House of Representatives indicated it would be touch-and-go whether the President's request would be granted or denied, with the opposition seemingly having the edge at present.

The reaction ranged from Senator Burton K. Wheeler's (Dem., Mont.) charge that the President's proposal was "a very definite, if not final, step toward Fascism," to the contention of Rep. James W. Wadsworth (Rep., N.Y.) that it was "the democratic thing to do."

TONIC FOR TROOPS
Robert P. Patterson, United States Under-Secretary for War, said enactment of a National Service Act would result in stabilization of labor in critical industries and would provide a definite morale boost for troops overseas.

The labor leaders renewed their opposition, with C.I.O. President Philip Murray denouncing national service legislation as "quack medicine" for what he termed the failures of legislative and executive agencies.

Both Murray and A.F.L. President William Green were asked to talk the matter over with Mr. Roosevelt today.

Senator Robert R. Reynolds (Dem., N.C.), head of the senate military committee, assailed national service legislation as a measure for "enslaving the American people," and said it would give this country "the same thing that Hitler and Stalin have got."

Two Saboteurs Are Executed At Gibraltar

LONDON, Jan. 12.—(CP)—Two Spaniards were executed in Gibraltar yesterday for offences against defence regulations. It was announced last night. One was found with a bomb in his possession before it could be used and the other placed a bomb on a gasoline tank in a fuel enclosure at a coaling island, starting a "serious" fire.

The two—Luis Lopez Cordon Cuenca, 23, and Jose Martin Munoz, 19—both natives of La Linea, Spain, had been sentenced by a Gibraltar court. Cuenca appealed his conviction to the privy council but it failed.

PRO-AXIS AGENT
"Cordon Cuenca was an agent working for the pro-Axis group in southern Spain who were recruiting Spaniards to commit sabotage in Gibraltar on behalf of the German secret service in Spain," said the official announcement.

"When arrested, Cordon Cuenca was found to have in his possession a bomb which he knew was intended to be used for sabotage in an armaments tunnel of His Majesty's dockyard at Gibraltar."

"Martin Munoz succeeded in smuggling a bomb into Gibraltar and placing it on a gasoline tank in the fuel enclosure of a coaling island," the announcement said. "The explosion caused a serious fire, destroying property and fuel. Martin Munoz also had a second bomb hidden in Gibraltar with which he intended to commit further sabotage if he escaped detection after the first act."

Reserve Army Is Still Needed Says Director

By JACK BRAYLEY
OTTAWA, Jan. 12.—(CP)—Maj. Gen. F. R. Phelan, director-general of Canada's reserve army who is back from a coast-to-coast tour of reserve units, said yesterday the need and importance of the reserve still is "very great."

"And the enthusiasm, training schedules and turnouts I saw from Vancouver to Halifax convinced me the officers and men realize this fact," he said in an interview.

Youths in reserve army ranks, trained by veteran officers who served in the First Great War, are "as keen as mustard," Gen. Phelan said, and most of them intend to "go active" when they reach the required age.

AMPLE EQUIPMENT
He said a fifth of all recruits for the three armed services come from the reserve army. The reserve now has "as much equipment as we need for our program" and the keenness shown by all ranks in applying their theory in week-end tactical exercises was "an eye-opener," even to the general.

"We have a job to do that is important and the great majority of our chaps realize that. All of them make great sacrifices of time and money, give up their leisure time, including week-ends, to turn out to drills and tactics," Gen. Phelan said.

Gen. Phelan told of officers, who turned back all their pay into regimental training funds of one kind or another; of battalion commanders who considered themselves fortunate if they had one free night in two weeks, and of men who worked long hours in war factories and then turned out to three drills a week and perhaps a week-end tactical exercise.

It would be "pretty hard" to select star units in his trans-Canada tour, said Gen. Phelan.

SOON READY FOR FIELD
"Most of them I saw, right across the country, would need only a little intensive training to take their places in the field beside the active army."

In Vancouver and the west he found no slackening of effort and he saw no reason to expect any falling off of interest.

Training for the new year term includes basic training, week-end tactical schemes, shooting in indoor ranges, small arms training and various types of field work.

The general also saw representatives of Canada's 100,000 cadets during his tour and declared they were "a smart lot of lads and by taking this training are fitting themselves for the future and learning a respect for order and discipline which is a prerequisite of good citizenship."

He said many of the cadet corps were inaugurating ski troop training.

Asks Joint Control Of Airports, Roads By Canada, States
WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(CP)—Representative Harold C. Hagen, Farmer-Labor member for Minnesota, has a bill before congress designed to bring about formation of a joint international commission for the holding and management of airports and highways built and financed in Canada by the United States.

The bill was introduced Monday and referred to the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, without debate. Hagen told The Canadian Press it was his own idea.

The bill provides that the President invite Canada to co-operate in the creation of a joint commission with three members from each country, to investigate and determine the values of airports and highways jointly owned and to handle them in the best interests of both countries.

British Columbia Indians Continue Fund For Spitfire

OTTAWA, Jan. 12.—(CP)—British Columbia Indians are continuing their determined effort to have a Spitfire bearing their name flying against the Axis.

The resources department said yesterday that a cheque for $428 had been forwarded by the Indian Affairs branch to the Wings for Britain fund, to be added to about $1,800 already collected by the Indians.

The money donated was received in the branch from Maj. F. J. C. Ball, Indian agent at Vancouver.

Of the $428, $25 was raised by the children of Kitilano High school, under a project sponsored by Mrs. Mary Sieburth. The balance was derived chiefly from the sale of Indian handicraft made at the Coqualeetza hospital and sold without commission in a Vancouver store.

Employers Soon To Check Status Of Male Workers

OTTAWA, Jan. 12.—(CP)—Labor Minister Mitchell last night announced that, under authority of an order-in-council passed recently, he expects to issue within a few weeks an order requiring all employers of male workers to examine the standing of employees of military call-up age to make sure that they have complied with mobilization regulations.

The order, to be issued when arrangements have been completed to assist employers in making the necessary survey, will set forth the dates between which employers are to check on their employees.

LOCATE DELINQUENTS
It is hoped, the announcement said, that any man who may be delinquent in regard to military call-up may be located so that his case may be dealt with.

The term "employer" will include dominion, provincial and municipal governments, as well as all private businesses and also farmers, even where the employee is a son or other relative of the farmer.

Mr. Mitchell said no action on the part of employers is necessary until the formal order is issued, although male employers should in the meantime provide themselves with copies of any documents they need to prove that they have not failed to comply with mobilization regulations.

18 U.S. Generals Given Awards By King George

ALGIERS, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Eighteen American generals, including Lt.-Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., and Mark W. Clark, received British decorations yesterday by order of King George VI for meritorious action in the Mediterranean.

Patton, commander of the U.S. 7th Army, was made a Companion of the Order of the Bath on recommendation of Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, Allied commander in Italy.

The citation said the decoration was for his work as commander of the American Second Corps during the Maktassyah battle in Southern Tunisia last year.

CONFERRED BY WILSON
The decorations were conferred by the new Allied commander-in-chief, Gen. Sir Maitland Wilson, in a colorful ceremony. The other generals were praised in their citations for staff work and field leadership.

The decorations included Knight Commander of the Bath to Maj.-Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, now chief of staff to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's invasion command in Britain; Knight of the Order of the British Empire to Gen. Clark, commander of the U.S. 5th Army.

With Patton, Lt.-Gen. Omar N. Bradley, who succeeded Patton as commander of the U.S. 2nd Army Corps, and Maj.-Gen. Ernest N. Harmon, Charles W. Ryder, Lowell W. Rooks, Alfred L. Gruenther, Lucian K. Truscott, Manton S. Eddy and Terry Allen were made Companions of the Order of the Bath.

OTHER DECORATIONS

Russian-Polish Agreement Now Appears Likely

By JUDSON O'QUINN
LONDON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—The Polish cabinet held two meetings yesterday—confering with Foreign Secretary Eden in between—and there were indications of the approach of some sort of working agreement between Russia and Poland so they might present a unified front against the Germans.

Another meeting of the cabinet was slated today. It seemed likely a statement would be issued then clarifying Poland's position on the latest Moscow proposal in the countries' border dispute.

DECISION REACHED
The conference with Eden suggested that Polish leaders probably had reached a decision and were anxious to learn the foreign minister's view before making it public.

Early settlement of the Russo-Polish border dispute appeared to hinge on the degree to which the Polish government in London is willing to reconstitute itself on a basis friendly to or at least agreeable to Russia.

One general opinion was that Moscow had opened the door to a settlement but that if the Polish government did not enter, the door would be shut and the Soviets would turn their attention to the "Polish patriot group" formed in Russia.

Russia's first concession in the dispute—the offer of a modified "Curzon Line"—with Poland apparently receiving East Prussia for an outlet on the Baltic—was viewed here as an important contribution to an expected ultimate settlement.

The suggested shape of negotiations was: reconstitution of a government that could conciliate with Russia; resumption of diplomatic relations; and then ironing out details in the proposed broad agreement.

"FACE-SAVING" PLAN
The Soviet suggestion to alter the "Curzon Line"—which the supreme Allied Council in 1919 accepted but which the Poles refused—in accordance with overwhelming Polish populations was seen as a face-saving out for the Polish government. So far that government has opposed yielding any territory.

The Curzon line, named for the late British foreign secretary, roughly followed the Bug river and a line between Grodno and Brest-Litovsk as Poland's eastern boundary. The Poles, then fighting the Russians, would not accept it and the border eventually was drawn up to 160 miles eastward by the 1921 Riga treaty. That border existed until the Germans and Russians partitioned Poland in September, 1939.

One barrier to a quick agreement now was said to be Soviet insistence on having Lwow in the south-west Poland area to provide a common Russia-Czech border and a friendly pathway into the heart of Europe. The Poles have insisted on retaining Lwow and Wilno and thus far have found some British sympathy for these demands.

Nazis' Panzers Break Through Partisan Lines

By JOHN A. PARRIS
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
LONDON, Jan. 12.—Strong German tank units have broken through Partisan defences in Bosnia, a Yugoslav communiqué acknowledged today, and a Hungarian broadcast reported the Nazi forces had captured Jajce, seat of the Partisans' headquarters and provisional government.

German panzers, striving to wipe out patriot resistance in advance of any Allied invasion of the Balkans, drove through Partisan positions below Banja Luka and headed for Jajce, 30 miles to the south, and nearby Mrkonjgrad with "constantly-increasing momentum," a Partisan communiqué announced.

The Hungarian report that Jajce already had fallen was not confirmed in Yugoslav quarters.

ALLIES RUSH IN ARMS

Middle-eastern dispatches have reported that the Allies were rushing arms and ammunition to Marshal Josip (Tito) Brozovich's forces by ship across the Adriatic and by plane in an attempt to brace them for just such German attacks.

(A Hungarian broadcast said Allied planes were sighted over Croatia between 10.10 and 10.35 p.m. last night. Their objective, the broadcast said, "was to supply Partisans with arms and ammunition.")

However, the Partisans still were comparatively ill-armed and had only a few captured tanks and limited artillery with which to resist the Nazi armored forces. Allied observers speculated that the Partisans may be forced to retire to the mountains of central Yugoslavia to reorganize their forces.

Battled With "All Guts in World" Canadians Out-Fought and Out-Lasted Cream of German Army in Moro Valley

By DOUGLAS AMARON
WITH THE CANADIANS IN ITALY, Jan. 12.—(CP)—Fundamental qualities of Canada's soldiers as fighters and as men came to the fore in the Moro Valley battle, which ended Dec. 27 when western troops of the Canadian 1st Division drove the Germans from the Adriatic coastal town of Ortona.

Stacked against the cream of the German army on ground which favored defence, the Canadians out-fought and outlasted the enemy. They have been praised by their commanders and now praise for their courage comes from the padre of one of the battalions which captured Ortona. It was expressed in a simple sentence: "It has been wonderful to see."

Maj. Roy Durnford of Prince Rupert, B.C., has been padre of this unit throughout its Mediterranean campaign. He has seen the troops before, during and after many battles but never was he so impressed as in this latest fight.

"ALL GUTS IN WORLD"
"Those lads fought with all the guts in the world," he said. The padre told of Christmas Day in Ortona.

The town was a battlefield with every house a citadel. The Canadians and Germans fought from house to house, from room to room. The spirit of Christmas, however, was kept alive.

The church, which had been holed by shells, was converted "to provide food for the body as well as the spirit." The Germans were only a few hundred yards away but from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. the Canadian companies were relieved and brought back for Christmas dinner.

"As the men came from the line I gave them a chance to sing carols," the padre said. "Our signal officer, Lieut. Wilfred Gilder-sleeve of Vancouver, played the organ."

"We put a harmonium out in the cloisters only a few yards from a hole where a shell revealed the sepulchre with its bones. Here the men collected to wait their turn to go inside to eat."

MEN HAGGARD, DRAWN

"The men were bearded, haggard, drawn and scarred but one by one they began to sing to the accompaniment of the crump of shells which shook the walls. Gradually their spirits rose, the tenseness left them and they relaxed."

"What will we sing, boys? I would ask them."

"Hark the Herald Angels Sing," they would reply, and then there would be the crump of a shell.

"It's all right, boys, it's our own. I would tell them."

"While the men were eating I went into the left where the organ was playing and with those officers who were not busy, sang more carols."

"The last meal was served by candlelight and huge, grotesque shadows played on the walls. We had to use vestments to plug the shell holes through which the light might shine but they were not being desecrated, for they were saving lives."

"As each meal ended, the men were asked to leave as quickly as possible to make room for the next group. They left with hesitation and reluctance, knowing full well they were going back to face death itself. For some of those boys that dinner was their last."

The padre said some of these soldiers were "tough, hard-bitten boys who have always looked askance at religion."

"Some of them came in contact with a clergyman for the first time when they joined the army. Yet in the last few weeks, more than any other time in my period with the army, I have been treated to little confessions."

"All that is fundamental comes up in men in times like these. Many of them told me they said their prayers for the first time and last Saturday the boys asked me if I would take a church parade for them. That never happened before. It has been wonderful to see. These boys have been frightened yet, despite their fear, they have gone back into the line. It takes courage to do that."

Airlines in States Set Safety Record

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—The 16 passenger-carrying commercial airlines of the United States chalked up their best safety record in 1943 since 1939, with only two fatal accidents and 23 fatalities, the Civil Aeronautics board reported yesterday. The air-lines flew approximately 1,650,000,000 passenger-miles in the year.

Daniel Webster first studied the Constitution printed on a cotton handkerchief, in early childhood.

Originated in Canada
Now Standard of Quality
Throughout the World

AND WHAT IS THIS Quality?

It begins with a secret scientific formula—never yet successfully imitated, calling for pure, wholesome ingredients... the finest Jamaica Ginger Root—pure cane sugar—triple-purified, ultra-violet-ray treated water—and Canada Dry's special process of pinpoint carbonation.

Each ingredient must measure up to a fixed, high standard of quality... each step in manufacture is followed with mathematical exactitude and checked by continual analysis.

As a result, every drop of Canada Dry is always and everywhere the same—full of that subtle flavour, that lively, bubbling tang, which people throughout the wide world expect, and never fail to get. It's the Champagne of Ginger Ales.

City Council Please Note

Here is an extract from a news story which appeared on page thirteen of The Edmonton Bulletin, Monday:
"Announcement is made of a new issue of $3,000,000 serial debentures of the British American Oil Company, Limited. The issue, which was placed through Messrs. A. E. Ames & Company, Limited, December 15, 1943, consisted of ten year 2½% and 3¼% serial debentures maturing $250,000 per annum in the years 1944 to 1951 inclusive and $500,000 per annum in 1952 and 1953. The debentures will carry a coupon rate of 2½% for the years 1944 to 1948 inclusive and 3¼% for the years 1949 to 1953 inclusive."

We draw this respectfully, but pointedly, to the attention of the Mayor, the Commissioners and the City Council of Edmonton.
The British American Oil Company Limited is an exceedingly reputable concern. Yet it is a private company, operating for profit. It is able to get the money it needs at an interest rate as low as 2½ percent.
There is something decidedly anomalous about the fact that a civic corporation, owned by the public and operated without profit, for the benefit of the public, must pay 4 and 5 percent for the money it borrows.

The truth is that inordinately high interest rates, which are all out of proportion to the rates paid in private and public borrowing in Eastern Canada and still lower in the United States, are throttling the life out of Edmonton. They are preventing expansion, postponing needed civic improvements and imposing an intolerable burden and in thousands of cases ruined the taxpayer.

If the British American Oil Company Limited can get plenty of money for 2½ percent, there is nothing on earth to prevent the City of Edmonton getting an even better interest rate if it is demanded in no uncertain terms.

Moscow Tells Poland

Russia has clarified its position on the Polish border question. Its plans are stated as intentions, rather than proposals, and others countries are warned that interference would not be welcomed. The announcement is in a tone of finality, leaving no doubt that the arrangement sketched is substantially Moscow's last word on the subject.

It is proposed to restore to Poland that part of the Russian-occupied territory which is predominantly Polish in population—roughly one-tenth of the area allocated to Russia in the Stalin-Hitler partition in 1939. To compensate the Poles for this loss of territory, Russia offers to assist them in recovering territory in the west, taken from them by Germany in recent and remote times.

This would move the eastern border of pre-war Poland westward for a distance varying up to 150 miles, and restore about 70,000 square miles of territory to the Ukraine and White Russia, territory held by Russia prior to the First great war. How much Poland would gain in the west at the expense of Germany is indefinite.

This will disappoint the hopes of Poles who looked for the restoration of their country as at mid-summer of 1939. But this expectation can never have been very strong, and the terms in general cannot be said to be more severe than the circumstances predicted. Readjustment, rather than destruction or crippling of the Polish state, is involved.

Ukrainians and White Russians have not been very happy under Polish rule, and the exclusion of these elements would make for national solidarity. The same cannot be said for the implied proposal that East Prussia be made part of the compensating territory given to Poland. If that birth-place of German aggression is to be incorporated into Poland, one problem in the eradication of German "will to war" will be solved, but at the cost of making the Poles keepers of a very unruly ward.

The boundary indicated by Moscow would run in a general north and south direction from the Lithuanian border through Brest-Litovsk to the Bug river. This is the line proposed by Lord Curzon in 1919 as marking the eastward limit of territory to which Poland could lay just claim. Russia thus plans to establish the boundary posts where suggested at the close of the First great war.

The News from Verona

There are five Fascists with whom the Allies need not concern themselves when the lists of war criminals are being made up. According to reports from the Nazi capital the five—all former members of the Fascist Grand Council—were condemned to death by the Nazi-sponsored "treason" tribunal at Verona, and were shot on Tuesday.

The five condemned and executed included Count Ciano, son-in-law of Mussolini, than whom few men can ever have more deserved to be shot or hanged. There were fourteen other names on the roster, but one of those arraigned was imprisoned, and thirteen of the offenders were foresighted enough and lucky enough to get beyond reach of the gestapo when the Mussolini power was breaking up.

The unlucky five were not condemned because they had committed or sanctioned crimes under cover of war. That is the one and only reason to regret their conviction. Their offence was that they voted in the Grand Council to depose Mussolini, when it became apparent that the war was lost. Their "treason" consisted in voting to break with Hitler, make peace, and save their country from the hardships incidental to a hostile invasion.

Revenge no doubt was the motive in putting these turn-coats to death. But the moral is plain for any Germans who have been harboring thoughts that it would be well to depose Hitler and make peace with the Allies. They know now that death awaits them if Hitler gets wind of their "treasonable" notions. Ten years ago the people of Germany built a Frankenstein. The news from Verona is warning that it has them in its grip.

Mosquito bombers visited Aachen again at the week-end. Any German city known to be a prominent centre of chemical industries is sure to get attention from the airmen these days, on the assumption that it is a likely place for the manufacture of poison gas. Only one guess is needed as to what this indicates in regard to the prospect of an early invasion.

Judge Mott, for twenty-five years a judge in Toronto's juvenile court, says he sees no alarming increase in juvenile delinquency. The wartime average, he says, is little higher than that of pre-war years in Toronto, and the general trend is that "delinquency increases in years of prosperity and falls off when times are bad. Conditions in Toronto may not of course be the same as in other centres, but the opinion of the Judge is a warning against glib assumptions that the youngsters of the country are going to the dogs."

Chungking reports that the Japanese are preparing internment camps at Shanghai in which to lodge Germans when the Nazi power is crushed; supposedly German civilians trapped in the Orient when the war broke and technical men and officials sent to show Tojo how to win his war. Internment would be correct procedure in the circumstances, as that would give the internees the status of non-belligerents. But Herr Hitler will hardly thank his ally for this intimation that his war machinery is going to be knocked to pieces—certainly not for so handling things that the prediction reached the Allies.

They left Edmonton in May, proceeding from the Landing in canoes, which they finally drew up on the shores of Hudson Bay, after a journey of 850 miles through a completely unexplored wilderness. Their route lay by way of Lake Athabasca, Black River and lake. The party consisted of eight, including three Caughnawaga Indians from Montreal, and three from near Prince Albert. No local Indians would go with them across the height of land south of Black lake, as they were afraid of being eaten by the Eskimo. System Must Deal With Infinite Variety of Cases

By A. J. H. POWELL
Chairman of the Citizens' Rehabilitation Council of Edmonton and of the Rehabilitation Section of the War Services Council of Northern Alberta.

John Doe was over at the Veterans' Pavilion (back of the University Hospital—remember it?) bright and early this morning. There was nothing about the experience, nothing worse than waiting his turn on a seat outside the offices and then walking past a row of lady typists. When his name was called, he went into a room where five men sat around a plain table holding a small stack of files and a few ashtrays. His friend the Veterans' Welfare Officer (V.W.O. for short) was there, along with a very human-looking doctor in a white coat, the Pensioners Advocate, the educational members who didn't even look like a school principal, and the secretary. All five are ex-servicemen themselves, and all five are there pulling for John Doe.

His case doesn't take very long, as he is just the kind that is easiest to help—he wants to help himself. The facts are quickly reviewed—age 21, single, home in Eastwood, gunshot injury to right shoulder, would like to take training in sheet metal. There are several interested questions from the board members, about his schooling, any trade training he got in the army, the present state of his shoulder. The doctor puts him carefully through some arm movements and is satisfied. The chairman says: "What we can offer you is free instruction at our trade school for as long as necessary up to a limit of twelve months. Probably you will be ready to go out and earn in six months; but if your shoulder slows you up, it may be wise to keep you longer than that. We can give you $10.20 a week to live on. Can you manage on that?"

John thinks he can get by on that all right, living at home. "Very well then. Can you start on Monday morning?" Monday is O.K., is it? Go to Mr. Thompson at the Technical school (yes, the old Tech. on First street) at 9 a.m. Monday. Your first cheque for $10.20 will come through about Thursday. You see we have to send these papers down to Calgary and the cheques come from there. You're all right till then?"

John says thank you and goes out. We wish they were all as easy as that. To show that they are not, let us see who comes in next. His name is Thomas Higgs, aged 44, married with five young children. He has a quarter section in a pioneer northern settlement, and has applied for a grant while awaiting returns. Before enlisting he sold his stock and machinery, his wife and family have remained on the place living on Dependents' Allowance. Now Higgs and his family face the winter without Dependents' Allowance. He has about $17 left of his clothing allowance and the month's pay on discharge. There are 14 acres broken on the farm, not cultivated for two years. "What returns do you expect from the farm during 1944, Mr. Higgs?" someone asks. Higgs explains that if he could get a few hundred dollars now he could buy some sows and feed, a couple of milk cows and a team; and pick up essential machinery. The chairman explains that the board is controlled by Dominion law, and has no power to make loans or free grants for equipping farms. The problem is considered from all angles for forty minutes. The board's job is to help the veteran re-established in civil life, but it does not see how this can be done by giving him living grants of $..... a week when he has no prospect of becoming self-supporting. Higgs thinks he can get work around the district—or could if only his back didn't go bad on him all the time.

To cut a long story short, the board decides to have investigation and report upon the prospects of the Higgs' farm becoming a sound concern, and in the meantime awards two weeks' out-of-work benefit to save the family from immediate hardship. Higgs goes out far from satisfied, and the board wishes it had the power to give him a full line of livestock and machinery.

The next to come in at the door is Raymond Hawkes, a lad of 22, single, who joined the air force back in '39. He is nicely recovered from rheumatic fever and back in civilian life. The doctor goes over him with the stethoscope and congratulates him on good care and a sound constitution. Raymond went to the war after one year in then Dental course at Varsity; now he would like to continue on to graduation. A volley of questions and answers follows. Yes, he passed clear through his first year. He is sure he can make out on the grant of $10.20 a week since the fees will be paid. His parents can't help him—he wouldn't want them to, anyway; but he is sure he can pick up some useful money playing the sax in a dance orchestra, and his mother put away quite a bit of his pay for him. Presently the board is satisfied, and signs O.K. to his application. The educational member goes out to the phone, and makes an appointment for Raymond to go right over to the Arts building of the university and have a talk with Librarian D. E. Cameron, secretary of the committee which is waiting to receive and help just such fellows as Raymond. So far, that committee has had very little to do. Nevertheless it has already guided one Eastwood boy through to graduation in engineering, and has another boy (Victoria high school 1934) under its supervision now.

So Raymond goes out to his career, and his place on the applicant's chair is taken by Miss Nataka Ragooschuk who came in from Willingdon two months ago to join the Navy. She is not quite strong enough for the life, so here she is looking for commercial training so that she can take a job and make her own way in life. She is 18, of good appearance, speaks nicely, and filled her application intelligently in beautiful handwriting. She says she completed grade 11 at Willingdon, but took no commercial subjects there. As she has only two months' service, the board will have to turn her training over to the Youth Training people after two months, but there will be no difficulty about that if her progress is good. "Will you be able to live on $..... a week, Miss Ragooschuk?" the chairman asks. She explains that she will live in Norwood with her married sister, and will manage all right. Meanwhile the educational member may have checked up with the Department of Education on the girl's grade standing. Presently all are agreed that Miss Ragooschuk should have her chance, and sign O.K. to the application. "Can you begin on Monday?" No, she only came in for the day, and would need to go back home and pack her clothes; she could begin Wednesday morning. So that is settled; she is to begin her training accounts at the old German club just behind W. W. Sales on Wednesday at 9 a.m. "Ask for Mrs. Kimball—she will take care of you." And we may be sure that Mrs. Kimball will.

So the morning goes on. The typewriters in the outer office are covered for the week-end, and the workers go home, but the board goes on right through the noon-hour. The applicants we have described are fictitious but typical. After them come the applications by letter. A discharged Veteran Guard down Tofield way has a recurrence of stomach ulcers and wants money to get proper care and treatment. He omits to say if he has a wife and family. The secretary is instructed to call him in to hospital, so that he may receive free medical care and treatment, and the proper grant "while temporarily incapacitated" may be made for the care of his dependents, if any.

About A Woman Taxi Driver

Trials and Tribulations of Those Who Drive for Hire

By MARY ALICE QUAYNE

Not long ago a friend of mine decided to start her own taxicab company and to be one of the drivers herself.

Her job lasted just three days and she learned much about cab riders in particular and human nature in general. She also learned something about the ways of taxi drivers, the tricks of their trade, the rigid rules of the "feed line."

After three days she had driven many passengers and discovered that taxi riders can be divided into four distinct classes: (1) The hurry school, (2) the back-seat school, (3) the quiz school, and (4) the silent school.

Her first fare was a woman—obviously a charter member of the Hurry School. "Awful rush—have to get to the office before the boss," she said. During the zig-zagged drive down and across town, the passenger was perched on the edge of the seat. She couldn't relax. She urged the driver on repeatedly.

Upon arriving at the destination, the driver realized that she hadn't taken time out to turn down the meter-flag. However, she calculated the distance and arrived at a 40-cent fare, which the passenger paid plus a 20-cent tip and was out of this car.

After talking with another cab driver she decided to take his advice and drive the way she usually did. He told her to tell her customers that if they didn't like it, to take another cab. "Sure," he said, "they'll expect you to go through the lights and get them where they want to go in no time. But you'll get old if you do that."

Another customer, a member of the Hurry School, was a fat man who wedged himself into the seat and breathed heavily as he swore at pedestrians, buses and his driver. After getting a five-cent tip from him she resolved to contribute all spare coins to an anti-speed society.

Back-Seat School
She said that as the first day wore on there seemed to be less reason for speed, and she caught up with members of the Back-Seat School. To these riders the driver is nothing more than a robot; they direct the cab from the moment they get inside until they reach their destination safely.

The most irritating member of this school she decided, are the ones who prefer to keep their ultimate goal a secret.

Taxi drivers resent constant interference from the back seat. Some of them stop the car and tell the passenger to leave if he won't tell where he's going. Nine times out of ten, drivers say, the passenger is so flustered that he gives the address and is not heard from again.

Quiz School
By far the most interesting passenger, she says, belongs to the Quiz School. As soon as he settles in his seat he begins to fire questions at the driver. He seems to regard the driver as philosopher and guide, a person whose insight and experience qualify him to discuss both domestic and international affairs.

In her three days she had only four of the Silent School passengers. Occasionally one of them would ask for a match, but they made no conversation. "They merely wanted to be driven and to be left with their thoughts."

She told me that cab drivers, for the most part, are kindly and helpful. They are inclined to philosophize and to classify personalities. They are cynical but their cynicism has not made them bitter.

As far as the passengers were concerned, she said the women were far more interested than the men in the phenomenon of a woman taxi driver. On the whole they were pitying, but eager to know how she liked her job. They appeared to be less nervous about "er ability as a driver than the men."

Her three days of taxiing were busy days—driving, dodging, stopping, starting, watching the lights, watching the pedestrians, and all the while discussing the world situation, the important and petty trials of life, both of her life and the life of her current fare, and dealing with all kinds of people. By the end of her third day she was pretty well accustomed to her new, though temporary, role, and was taking the varied experience of a taxi driver in her stride, as well as her responsibility as a commentator on foreign and domestic affairs.

War Against Japs and Fever

Disease Is Big Factor in Campaign in Pacific Area

By RAYMOND CLAPPER

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA—The war in the Pacific is partly a war against the Japs and partly a war against mosquitoes carrying malaria and Dengue fever.

When I went ashore at one South Pacific island base, the first sign that greeted me as I left the dock was a poster nailed to a tall coconut tree. One picture on the poster showed a ferocious-looking Jap soldier, and underneath was the phrase, "He causes one casualty."

Next was a picture of an equally ferocious mosquito, with the line, "He causes many casualties."

The fight is a never-ending one. They spray all the ditches with Diesel oil three times a week. The job is done largely by men being disciplined for minor infractions of the regulations. Life is so rugged that there are few privileges that can be taken away from men, so they get their punishment in the form of this tedious malaria-control work.

Some political difficulties have been encountered in pushing malaria control over this particular island. American naval officers found a small native village with pigs and tubercular cows right in the heart of a military area where thousands of men were living in barracks. They found that the natives were infected with malaria. Mosquitoes from the infected village were liable to carry the disease to the American troops. But the French authorities had not permitted the village to be moved, up to the time I was there, and our naval and military people felt powerless. Perhaps our medical officers can eventually get it done by persuasion.

This is no occupation, but is an American military effort conducted from bases on an island, which is controlled jointly by the British and the French. Legally, the American forces are there only by sufferance and are subject to the laws and regulations of colonial officials. Although we have built an enormous dock and a fine system of roads for the island, it takes an argument before the military can get permission to cut down coconut trees to clear the ground for military construction.

In spite of these political obstacles which permit a malaria-infected village in the midst of a military camp, and flow tubercular cows to roam the whole place, an enormous effort is being put forth against disease by the American military. For example, the roads on this island are surfaced with crushed coral, which runs easily, thus providing little basins to hold water where mosquitoes can breed. So the roads are scraped and rolled far beyond the normal requirements for traffic, as a part of our malaria control.

Cmdr. Gene Tunney was at one place where we stopped. He has just completed a huge recreation centre which Mrs. Roosevelt called "The Coney Island of the South Pacific" when she was through there recently. Baseball diamonds, football fields, tennis courts and facilities for other sports have been provided.

One finds vast differences in among the various islands. The malaria trouble I described above is on a mountainous heavily overgrown island where steam seems to breed mosquitoes and there must be a constant fight against the jungle. On the day before I visited another kind of island—a low coral bar, with no vegetation whatever except for a few palm trees and shrubs. The fine dust from the coral gets into everything, and together with the moisture from the ocean makes a fine gritty gum that leaves windows and windshields with an almost permanent film. Shoes and clothing rot quickly.

I went up the steel steps of an observation tower that is only a year old and it was already rusted as if from 50 years of exposure.

The coral-reef island is really less inviting for living than the jungle island, since the latter has been well cleared. The coral island is just a strip of white glare about 200 yards wide, and our men feel like stranded gooney birds—which were the only inhabitants before the Americans came in.

On that island as in some other places care is being taken not to build huge permanent bases that will not be really needed after we get full control of the Pacific.

Interesting Australian Flight

Sections Due for Great Population Increases Soon

By B. T. RICHARDSON

BRISBANE, Aus. — One girl, whose praises are sung by Australians in the jungles of New Guinea, is Margaret Stevens, who runs a hotel in Brisbane, and who acts as adviser, mother and landlady to the boys to and from New Guinea. A back room in her hotel is a sacred place where only Australians in uniform, and occasional visitors, such as Canadian newspapermen, are admitted.

Outside the steam-bath climate of Queensland sweated on the green hills around Brisbane. Inside the backroom, the boys talked about New Guinea, about Margaret's exploits in handling new arrivals. She has the fame of a mother to the Princess Pats in another war far away. She is tops with the Australians.

Margaret was once a school teacher, as she told her story, flitting among the boys. She is on the sunny side of 40. She was engaged to a sheep rancher, but a friend died and left her two children to Margaret. Having to choose between a prospective husband and two children, Margaret chose the children, along with whom went a hotel in a desolate part of western Queensland. That is how she came into the hotel business, and that is why she is able to provide a home away from home for homesick, thirsty Australians in the first major stop coming out of the jungles.

We flew down into Brisbane in hops taking two days. Just as the sun was coming up in a semi-tropical dawn, we took off from a distant station in the vast outback, flew for miles till we came down for tea and breakfast at an equally distant station turned into a modern airport. At 8,000 feet the sky was colored a vivid pink, with pure yellow patches in the east turning to gold. Small thunderheads all around warned that the rainy season was arriving in the tropics.

Grizzled

At Camooweal, in northwestern Queensland, we came down for lunch. A shy, long-legged boy with his mother in a car whisked us off to the sheet-iron cafe, where a few grizzled countrymen stared at us, like men from Mars. Outside the dry country shivered in heat. I talked to two boys, ranging along to school. One black, one white. In Queensland, the native blacks seem to receive more attention and some schooling. "Where is Canada?" I asked the white boy. "I dunno," he said, staring. I asked the black boy his name. "Ronnie Mate," he said, after several attempts. A young naval lieutenant from Hobart, Tasmania, going home from Darwin on a furlough that would not last till Christmas, talked about Canada with interest, at several of the stops. He was clean-cut, long-legged, intelligent, the kind of boy who might have come from Kinderley or Portage la Prairie.

We had passed the boundary fence between Northern Territory and Queensland, the ubiquitous symbol of states' isolationism in Australia. It was a straight line running to the horizon both ways, a scratch on the red and yellow landscape. Water courses began to thicken as we flew eastward. From the air the Queensland rivers in the outback, all dry, look like unravelling ropes, meandering across the country.

More 627 Miles

We stayed overnight at Longreach, a mere 627 miles by air from Brisbane, yet remote in the good sheep country. The Longreach club invited us in, and we chatted for an hour or two with sheep men in from their stations 50 or 75 miles. The country raises one sheep to three acres, yet there are 6,000,000 sheep in the shire, and each one produces more than eight pounds of wool annually. Messrs. Ford, Pare and Malone went to a movie, saw a Canada Carries On short subject on radio in war, one of John Grierson's epics called: Voice in Action. For the last 100 miles our pilot, Captain Simms, flew at 1,500 feet so we could see the country. It was not as low as the day in March, 1942, when he was 15 minutes out of Broome with a load of refugees and word came over his wireless that the Japs were attacking Broome. So he flew his great flying boat around in circles over the jungle, hoping the Japs were looking the other way. They were.

We saw thousands of sheep and hundreds of kangaroo on the trip into Brisbane, over the steadily greening country down to the Pacific. The wide dry land gives way to freed plateau, till we came to the famed Darling Downs, best merino sheep country in the world. This land of Queensland, so they say here, is the best country in Australia. But the local loyalties are strong everywhere in Australia. Queensland may well have a great future, for it has everything from jungle and sugar cane in the north down to sheep and cattle in the south. If the dreams of Queenslanders come true, this state will have 3,000,000 people and Brisbane may rise to a population in the lifetime of this generation. There are only 300,000 Australians here today in Brisbane, and the city is swollen with a wartime housing crisis that puts Brisbane in a special class by itself.

"Now take a good look and maybe you'll see your father if he comes out from that smoke screen he's been hiding behind all evening!"

Journey Among Warriors

Madame Sun Yat-sen Loyal to Memory of Husband: Tea With Generalissimo and Mme. Chiang

By EVE CURIE
Chapter IX.

I found Madame Sun Yat-sen, widow of the late president, at the home of her elder sister, Madame Kung. She received me in a small, bare room. Although our conversation lasted quite a long time, I felt as if she, like myself, were sitting on the edge of her chair, as if she did not really belong in that house. Her inner solitude was not expressed by words—yet it could at once be felt. I think that I could have guessed also, even if I had not been told so in advance, that of the three Soong sisters, Chingling, today, was the only one who had no money. The comfort of the Kungs' house did not seem to touch her life. Cinderella, then? Oh, no! The peculiar charm of Madame Sun was something else than that. She was by no means a victim—at least, not only a victim. She was a crusader faithful to the dreams of her youth. She was a fighter.

There were certain fundamental things that she wanted to impress on the foreign visitor—mainly that "liberal ideals" would never die in China, whatever course the Kuomintang policy might follow. I felt as if she were trying to say to me, without pronouncing these actual words: "Please don't leave China with the conviction that the Revolution has died down. Don't keep in your mind the picture of a hard-boiled, realistic China."

Eve Curie

She spoke to me, not of what I had seen in the country, but of what I had not seen: of the Co-op-eratives, of the fighting spirit of the guerrillas in the occupied zone, and of the Eighth Route Army. The Red soldiers fought under the most difficult conditions, she said. They lacked food, arms, drugs, quinine, vitamin pills—and money. She was trying to help them in every way. And she wanted America to help them.

She told me about the two organizations which, according to her, represented a "more democratic" side of China: The National Salvation group, composed of leftists, members of the Kuomintang, and the China Defence League, devoted mainly to relief work. She had critical words for one or two officials of the National government whom she suspected of "appeasement" tendencies—then she discussed the general war situation. Unquestionably, all her effort was bent toward victory: she was violently anti-Japanese. But victory for her had to have a political meaning. She was determined that the citizens of China should achieve victory and gain democratic rights at the same time—two victories in one. She wanted a war "by the people, for the people."

CLOSE CO-OPERATION

Year after year she had preached a close co-operation between the government and the Chinese Reds on the one hand, and between China and Russia on the other. She had not changed her mind. She still believed that it was what Sun Yat-sen would have worked for today. What I could not grasp, beyond her stirring sincerity and what nobody perhaps, could really appraise—was whether, in the China of 1942, Madame Sun Yat-sen expressed hopes and constructive plans shared by millions of her compatriots—or whether she only symbolized the end of a dying dream.

of interpreting the world to him. Madame Chiang could write in English and think in English. She knew what the westerners would assimilate and what they would reject.

General Ho Ying-chin, chief of the general staff and minister for military affairs, was in the best of spirits when I visited him. A short, man with plump smiling face, there was a very shrewd look behind his eyes. He wore a khaki uniform, boots and spurs. During our slow conversation, half in Chinese and half in English, allowing pauses for the translation, General Ho Ying-chin summed up the military situation in the east.

The General wasted no time lamenting the loss of Southern Burma, which he attributed to "the lack of preparation of the Allied defence, the lack of air and naval superiority, the lack of a unified inter-Allied command, and the Fifth Column activities of the local population." He simply stressed the fundamental differences between the conditions under which Japan had been fought so far by China and by the Allies.

ENDLESS LAND FRONT

"An endless land front such as the Chinese one, where both the enemy forces and our own are very scattered, is not favorable for the concentration of troops required by a lightning Japanese offensive," he explained. "In the Pacific, the situation is different. Japan can choose an island or a base on the mainland that she wants to conquer, then focus all her strength on that particular point. To strike first gives the aggressor an overwhelming advantage in that kind of warfare."

Commenting on China's present position, he said:

"If our war of resistance is being made more difficult by the rupture of the Burmese line of communications, on the other hand the pressure of the Japanese on the 4,000-mile Chinese front has somewhat relaxed, since some of the enemy forces were withdrawn to the south. Simultaneously, we too withdrew some troops and sent them to Burma, in order to fight side by side with the British."

INDISPENSABLE

General Ho favored the participation of Chinese forces in the operations against Japan "even on Indian soil, if this became necessary and if it was at all practical." He emphasized the fact that the manpower, the raw materials, the factories, and the shipyard of India were indispensable to the Allies for the prosecution of the war. When I asked him what equipment from abroad was particularly needed by the Chinese Army, he replied:

"We have no anxiety about food and clothing. The shortage which is being felt by some units is due to uneven distribution, to transportation difficulties rather than to the lack of goods. We can supply ourselves with light weapons, rifles, machine guns, and ammunition. But we must rely on British and American help for planes of every type—fighters, bombers, and transports—and for heavy artillery."

BELIEVE F.D.R.
ONLY PRESIDENT

BOSTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Many sixth-grade school children in Boston believe the United States has had only one president, Franklin D. Roosevelt, says school committee member Michael J. Ward.

During a school committee discussion, Ward said that he wanted to make certain that elementary teachers instruct pupils that presidents other than President Roosevelt have lived in the White House.

"When I was in the fifth grade I thought that the country had only three presidents in its history," Ward said, "but I am appalled to find greater ignorance among sixth-graders today. They think President Roosevelt is the only president we ever had."

My Day

BY ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK.—To go back to my diary, on Monday evening I spoke at the Institute of Arts and Sciences at Columbia University, and I feel that I owe a vote of thanks to the people who braved the bad weather to come out to that opening meeting.

Tuesday at noon I spoke for the Cosmopolitan Club, and that afternoon I went out to Westport, Conn., to speak in a movie house and to show my films. I returned on Wednesday after going, in the morning, to the school to talk to the children. Today I am speaking at noon and showing my film of my south-west Pacific trip at a meeting of the Rotary Club.

A letter came to me the other day which unfortunately bears no address. As I should like to answer it, I will have to print it here.

"Our favorite nephew enlisted in the navy shortly after Pearl Harbor, falling victim to the war hysteria and feeling it was his patriotic duty to come to the defence of his country.

"His mother has been notified by the U.S. Navy that he has been killed in action. My sister is now bereft of all she has to care for in this world and she is now inconsolable. There is really nothing we can say to her now that will assuage her grief. It seems so unjust that the wicked people who brought on this war should suffer no such loss as she has suffered and should go unpunished by God.

"It is too bad that you and your husband have not been punished by some deadly disease. Maybe, though, you and your husband will have to look into the faces of the dead corpses of your four sons. God always punishes the wicked in some way."

I should like to say to the woman who wrote this letter that I quite understand her bitterness. Neither my husband nor I brought on this war. It was brought on by many things beyond the control of any individual. We hope with all our hearts that the citizens of the world will learn from past mistakes and that together we may build a better foundation for peace in the future. The loss of a child is a terrible blow and one cannot blame a mother for being inconsolable. One can only hope that in time pride in her son will bring her some consolation.

Peace will not be built, however, by people with bitterness in their hearts. The boys who died in this war have given all they had to give to their country. The only way that any families can be reconciled to the sacrifices made, is for them to feel they are making the greatest contribution to the country of which they are capable, and that, by so doing, they are accomplishing the things for which their boys died, namely, peace on earth, good will toward men. This may help the world to keep other boys from having to sacrifice their lives in the future.

McCoy Health Service

Coughing takes place when it is necessary to expel an irritant from the windpipe or the bronchial tubes. The purpose of the cough is to remove the blocking material and thus to secure a free passage of air. However, in some instances a cough may not be due to any substances which are actually blocking the air passage, but is due to habit or to nervousness.

Prolonged or severe coughing is feared by the layman chiefly because it breaks into the sleeping period. It may also cause considerable chest soreness and throat irritation. Severe bouts of coughing have been known to bring about a rupture or hernia and to cause hemorrhage, although the average cough will not produce these consequences and is frequently due to acute bronchitis.

The cough which is bad for several days and then clears up is generally the result of a cold which has spread downward until it involves the bronchial tubes. The patient usually recovers within a week or two.

A chronic cough which hangs on is likely to be due to chronic bronchitis, although there is the possibility, especially in young adults, that it is due to tuberculosis of the lungs.

Whether or not a cough should be stopped is sometimes a problem with the doctor, but the prevailing opinion is that when clogging material is present such as mucus, it is better to allow the cough to continue, except in those few cases where there is some danger of hemorrhage. When the cough is not raising any mucus and is therefore unproductive, it may be advisable to stop the cough to conserve the vitality of the patient.

The act of coughing consists of a deep inspiration, followed by a strong expiratory effort against the closed glottis. The glottis is then suddenly opened and the air rushes out at a very high speed. At the same time the passage to the nose is closed off so that any substance being coughed up is expelled into the mouth.

The acute cough may usually be relieved by the short fast and by applying a deep therapy lamp or infra red lamp to the throat and front and back of the chest. The patient with one of these acute coughs should keep warm, should take plenty of fluid and should keep the colon clean. The chronic cough due to chronic bronchitis usually requires a much longer period of treatment before it is satisfactorily relieved.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large, stamped, self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address: McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

To Probe Death Of Nazi Captive In U.S. War Camp

CONCORDIA, Kas., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Col. Lester Voeck, commander of the Concordia war prisoner camp, ordered an investigation yesterday into circumstances leading to the death of a German private who two weeks ago told guards that "they are after me."

The German, Pie Franz Kettner, 30, died yesterday morning of cuts on his wrists which Voeck said were self-inflicted. There have been whispers of a German group functioning in the prison, holding trials and passing sentences, with a division between Nazi and anti-Nazi Germans.

U.S. Engineers Whip Yank Cagers 34-17

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

TONIGHT'S boxing tournament at the Arena is the most ambitious fight attraction yet attempted by the Inter-Service Sports Council and offers a variety program in which both novice and experienced glove men will be displaying their wares.

Eleven bouts are included on the card which is topped by the main feature between a couple of highly recommended boys in the 170-pound class, "Billie the Kid" Peterson in boxing instructor here for the U.S. Air Forces and Ron Wally, of the Canadian Army who has a Golden Gloves coast title to his credit.

Navy, Canadian Army, United States Army and Air Forces, R.C.A.F., Westsaskatoon and Camrose Training Centres will all have representatives in the ring. Feature bouts include John Rennie, Westsaskatoon vs. Peter Chapman (brother of Sammy, former local fighter), "M" Depot; Russell, Navy vs. Bilou, Westsaskatoon; "Flash" Penolo vs. Sharp, Westsaskatoon. An extra show—Vic Pollock, Canadian Army versus "Scotty" Smith, U.S. Air Forces was added yesterday. The whole affair looks decidedly promising.

ENGINEERS KEEP ROLLING

THE U.S. Army Engineers kept rolling right along at Westsaskatoon last night and won their sixth straight triumph for the season in City Men's Basketball League, by scuttling the Yanks 34-17. In addition the cage league leaders have several exhibition successes.

Inter-Service Fight Card Scheduled for Arena Tonight

ONE more bout, bringing the total to 11, was added Tuesday night to the boxing tournament being staged tonight at the Arena, No. 3 "M" Depot, by the Northern Alberta Inter-Service Sports Council.

The big fight card which includes three feature bouts in addition to the main attraction between Billie the Kid Peterson, U.S. Army and Ron Wally, Camrose, will get under way promptly at 8 o'clock. The event is open to the general public.

The bout added to the program yesterday brings together two 150-pounders, Vic Pollock, of the Canadian Army and formerly of Edmonton and Scotty Smith, of the U.S. Air Forces. Pollock, an experienced scrapper, has just returned to the city from Army duties in the far north.

F.D.R.'s Service Law

Legislation May Determine Position of Sports in War

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—(AP)—President Roosevelt's recommendation for a national service law may bring to a final decision whether sports are essential to the war effort—a verdict long sought in the sports world and in congress.

Representative Samuel Eiss (Dem.-Pa.), leader of a group of legislators who has been striving to have sports so classified, said Tuesday that if such a law is passed it "will bring a definite showdown".

A service law would mean that athletes, as well as all other able-bodied persons, would be liable to specific war-effort assignments in war production plants. Thus, if—say—professional baseball is to survive next summer, some one in authority must rule a ball player essential to the war effort for the sake of civilian morale.

Weiss and his group say it goes farther than civilian morale—that the soldiers and sailors want sports continued, want to know how the Dodgers are doing before they ask anything else of visitors to the battlefronts.

Total of 14 Points Scored By Gullekson

U.S. Engineers overcame the U.S. Army Yanks 34-17 in a rough, hard-fought game, the second of the night and Latter Day Saints trounced Varsity 30-14 in the curtain raiser of the Edmonton Men's Basketball League "A" section doubleheader at Westsaskatoon on Tuesday evening.

John Gullekson, tall Engineer centre, again paced the unbeaten league leaders with 14 points as they defeated their keener rivals for the third time this season.

The contest was rough from the opening whistle and continued that way throughout with no less than 24 fouls being called by Referee McClocklin and Keeler, 14 against Yanks and 10 on the winners. Paul Blawie, of the Yanks gathered in only a brace of markers, but he rates 58 for five games. Joe Lang has 63 for six sessions and Wayne Adams 54 for six.

Latter Day Saints last night went through their first game without their ace shooter Phil Sontag, but they looked good against varsity's Golden Bears. Leon Jenkins, who previously counted 23 points in five showings in 12, Evan Erickson now has a total of 34 for five games. Sammy Shekter, top man for Varsity to date has 44 for five starts. John McGinnis has 36 and Frank Fergie 35 for six games.

FIRST QUARTER CLOSE

The first quarter was close, but the Engineers, with Gullekson getting five, scored seven to Yanks' five to take the lead. The margin was short-lived, however, for the losers added five to Engineers' two and were ahead 10-9 at the half way mark.

The shooting of both teams was poor in the first half, the winners only counting on three of 14 field tries in the first session and nine out of 20 in the second while Yanks made only one out of nine good in the initial 10 minutes and two out of 19 in the second.

Engineers showed better skill in the last half and went on to overcome their rivals, adding eight to their opponents' four in the third frame and 15 to Yanks' three in the last.

ENGINEERS GAIN LEAD

Harley Miller, who also turned in a smart performance, opened the scoring in the third chapter to put Engineers ahead again. Blawie came back for the losers and made it 12-11 in the latter's favor, but Bob Channess capitalized on a free shot to deadlock the count at 12 early in the canto.

Manuel Dorsky dropped a long shot through the basket to put Yanks ahead again, this time 14-12, then on then on the league leaders began to click and showed just why to date they are the number one team in the circuit. They held the losers scoreless for the remainder of the session while adding seven, Gullekson hooping the tying basket and "Windy" Smith the one that put them ahead.

The victors put up a stiff defence in the last quarter, forcing the Yanks to take long shots, and went on to clinch the game by scoring 15 more points while holding the losers to only three counters.

Gullekson, Miller and Channess added six, five and four counters respectively to account for the 15 marked up by the Engineers, who were playing without Earl Ayers, a usual star w. is on furlough.

Following is the box score:

Engineers	FS	FT	PS	PT	PF	T
Gullekson	6	12	2	4	0	14
Miller	3	14	2	2	1	11
Channess	3	17	2	6	3	8

Leafs Win 10-4 Against Mapleos

Maple Leafs trounced their fellow club members the Mapleos 10-4 in their Midget Hockey League game at 96 street rink on Tuesday night.

Don Phillips sent Mapleos off in the lead, but Kay Strati and Denny Smith, both on power from Jim Stewart counted for the Leafs, before Don Walker tied the score.

Maple Leafs held a 5-3 lead at the end of the second period on goals by Stan Patterson, Stewart and Ray Barry. McAlra and Loy Hart combined for the Mapleos.

Stewart added three more for the Leafs in the third and Barry and Patterson got one each, Phillips securing the Mapleos' marker with the assistance of Don Quinlan.

SAINTS TURN IN FINE PERFORMANCE

The opening fixture last night saw a well-balanced Latter Day Saints' team build up a 17-2 lead at the half-way mark and go on to win 30-14 by adding 13 to University of Alberta's 12 in the second 20 minutes.

The winners, led by Leon Jenkins with 13 points, displayed some very fine team work, especially in the first half when they clicked to perfection on several occasions.

Dee Elfeberry, Glen Russell and Evan Erickson accounted for seven points scored by L.D.S. in the first quarter while Frank Fergie dropped in a basket for Varsity. Jenkins came through in fine style in the second frame and scored eight. Evan Erickson also chalked up a field goal to help to give the Saints their 15 point margin at the half.

Play was much closer in the third quarter, with the losers holding a little edge in scoring, entering eight to the Saints' six. Evan Erickson, Jenkins and Vic Wood tallied for the winners in that canto and Sammy Shekter, Fergie and Phil Proctor hooped Varsity's eight.

Play wasn't very fast in the fourth 10 minute session and, although the losers never gave up hope, they were unable to come within striking distance of the Latter Day Saints as the winners marked up seven while the students had to be content with four.

Following is the box score:

Lat. Day Saints	FS	FT	PS	PT	PF	T
Unopolis	1	8	0	1	0	2
Reed Erickson	0	2	0	0	0	0
Evan Erickson	4	14	0	1	1	8

Leafs Stop Canadiens 5-0 With Babe Bibeault in Nets

TORONTO, Jan. 12—(CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs crushed the league leading Montreal Canadiens 5-0 in a National Hockey League game last night before 12,641 spectators to cut short a Montreal winning streak at nine consecutive games.

The shutout, first against the Canadiens this season, was racked up by a former Montreal player—Paul Bibeault—who played a sensational game in goal behind the sparkling attack his teammates combined with steady defensive play.

Scoring star for the Leafs was Lorne Carr, veteran right winger, who scored two goals himself in the second and had assists on two tallied by 19-year-old Don Webster in the first. Carr's four scoring points were matched by Gus Bodnar who had assists on the goals by both Carr and Webster. Defenceman Reg Hamilton got the fifth Toronto goal, on an assist by rookie Teeter Kennedy.

Veteran Toe Blake was a constant threat for the victors, organizing dangerous thrusts all the time he was on the ice.

Heavy checking led to an outbreak of fist-fighting in the third period with Jack McLean of Toronto and Murphy Chamberlain of Canadiens starting the battle. They drew match misconduct penalties.

Phil Watson of Canadiens drew the heaviest penalty of the battle getting a match misconduct and a major. He fought with linesman Jim Primeau and then engaged in a wrestling match with youthful Tom O'Neill of Leafs. O'Neill also got a major.

Hamilton Tigers To Rejoin I.R.F.U.

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 12.—(CP)—The executive of the Hamilton Tiger Football Club has decided to resume play in the Inter-provincial Rugby Football Union after the war, it was made known last night.

The officials said pressure has been brought to bear on Tigers to field a team next autumn, but unless the war ends before that no attempt will be made to do so, the meeting decided.

Coffee is called "battery acid" by soldiers.

Using the success of the $12,500 Los Angeles open as support for their argument, this faction insists that the U.S.G.A. restore a full program of 1944 championship tournament to keep pace with other sports which have thrived throughout the war, despite manpower shortages.

Although the executive committee reportedly favored abandonment of the National open, the National amateur and the women's championships tournaments until the war is over, several delegates were ready to exert pressure for restoration of a full program of meets.

POINT TO OTHER SPORTS
THE argument that the standard of play would be too poor to represent the high level of the association was knocked out in the Los Angeles tournament. Harold (Jug) Mespaden, the winner, broke the Wilshire Club course record with a 72-hole total of 278, and sub-par rounds throughout the four-day affair were as plentiful as in the pre-war days.

Bob Harlow, professional singer of praises for the Pinehurst, N.C., course in the Christmas tree setting, and former manager of the P.G.A. tournament bureau, quoted golfers who believe that the sport has lost ground because of the cancellation of its championships for two years while other athletic promotions have been going at full blast.

"Those golfers who favor the resumption of the championships feel that if practically all other sports are carrying on with the consent of the government and the support of the people, there is no reason why golf should hide under a bushel," he said.

GEORGE MAY SETTING PACE
HARLOW also emphasized the success of the privately sponsored Tam O'Shanter open meets at Chicago in 1942 and 1943 as support for restoration of the championship tournaments.

"George May has been making golfing hay with those meets," Harlow said. "He was so encouraged with his Chicago events that he now has challenged the U.S.G.A. and promised to hold a George May national amateur championship after the war, unless the U.S.G.A. permits amateurs to receive more substantial prizes and traveling expenses to tournaments. He has done everything possible to win the loyalty of the top name golfers, counting upon their support after the war."

The golfing fathers, generally "open" minded, have indicated their opposition to restoration of tournaments because the sport long has been considered one for leisure hours, for afternoons off when three or four fellows at the plant had a few hours to kill. It has been hard to disassociate the sport from those pleasant, easy-going peace-time days when fans and players alike whiled away the hours after a meal, sitting under sun umbrellas or on the clubhouse veranda, sipping iced drinks and exchanging pleasant chit-chat. Any kind of a U.S.G.A. tournament might bring that back to a certain degree and that is just what the executives don't want—at least not until Hitler and Hirohito have been taken care of for good.

Physical Fitness Meeting Set Over

This local association is interested in carrying out the provisions of the National Physical Fitness act as adopted by the Senate and House of Commons of Canada. Provincial organizations are being formed under the act's provisions.

Lorne Carr in Second Spot

Bill Cowley's Scoring Lead Should Be Safe for A While

MONTREAL, Jan. 12.—(CP)—Bill Cowley will be missing from the Boston lineup for some time due to injuries, but it looks as though it will be a week or so yet before he can be boosted out of first place in the National Hockey League scoring race.

The great centre continues at the head of today's official statistics with 52 points, eight more than his line-mate Herbie Cain and five more than Lorne Carr of Toronto. Carr moved into the second spot last night by collecting four points.

Canadians' Elmer Lach has moved up into fourth spot, three points behind Cain and two ahead of Bill Mosenko of Chicago. Tied for sixth place are Doug Bentley of Chicago and Buddy O'Connor of Canadians, with 37 points each.

It looks as though Cowley's leadership in the assist column will go before his total-point margin. His 33 assists still leave him tops at present, but Lach has crept up to 30, and O'Connor has 29.

Cain still leads the goal-getters with 26, while Lorne Carr, Gerry Heffernan of Canadians and Mud Brunetteau of Detroit are tied with an even 20 each.

Only One 1942 All-Star Selected to Team of '43

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Reflecting the great changes in baseball resulting from the war, the 1943 all-star team, announced Tuesday by the Sporting News, includes nine players chosen for the first time by members of the Baseball Writers' Association.

Only Morton Cooper, the St. Louis Cardinals' pitcher, held over from the 1942 team, while Luke Appling, shortstop of the Chicago White Sox and the American League's batting champion, came back after having been named previously in 1936 and 1940.

The virtually complete remaking of the team brought initial recognition to such established players as Billy Herman of the Brooklyn Dodgers, Rudy York of the Detroit Tigers and Billy Nicholson of the Chicago Cubs, who had failed to make the grade in previous seasons.

Two rookies—Dick Wakefield of the Detroit Tigers and Bill Johnson of the New York Yankees—were placed on the team which was headed by Stan Musial, the St. Louis Cardinals' outfielder and National

Winter Meets Flourishing

Horse and Dog Race Tracks

Enjoying Banner Season

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 12.—(AP)—The race-goer who helped set some dizzy betting records in the north last summer has come to Florida for the winter, with plenty of money in his pockets.

Horse and dog track pari-mutuel machinery is whirling at a pace which would have brought words of satisfaction from operators even in days when the United States was at peace.

Monday, for example, at five pari-mutuel establishments within 20 miles of here a total of 15,509 paying patrons laid an aggregate of $816,757 on the line. That's an average of more than $52 a person, and at Hialeah Park, where 7,242 bet $581,651, the average was more than $80.

During the first three days the horses ran at Hialeah, the average daily handle was $587,572. The season's average for the last meeting before the United States entered the war was $553,416.

The golden avalanche started with the first half of Tropical Park's split meeting, when the sum of $7,109,922, unprecedented in the winter at that track, was wagered during 20 days.

The West Flagler Kennel Club, one of the most easily reached dog tracks, has had an average play of $102,058 a night this season—nearly double the handle for the same period of last season when the track operated with hardly any opposition from horse racing.

Almost without exception, the other dog tracks in the state are enjoying banner seasons.

The Fairgrounds track at New Orleans, which boomed with the shutdown of Florida horse racing last year, has had an average daily betting handle of $131,317 for the first 33 days of the current meeting.

Mundy counted from Green in the second and Boyd's second goal in the third made the score 4-0. Davies and Richmond combined for the Canadian marker.

Out of Hospital Cowley Gives Injury Version

TORONTO, Jan. 12.—(CP)—Playmaking star Bill Cowley of the Boston Bruins last night left Wellesley Hospital where he was undergoing treatment for a shoulder injury and planned to leave later in the evening for his home in Ottawa where he will spend the next five or six days.

"I'll be at home for five or six days and then I'll go to Boston," he said. "They may be able to help me along there with treatments."

Telling how he was injured, Cowley said: "I was going around the south goal and McLean was checking me. He eased me into the boards. I felt my shoulder pain and skated directly off."

He had no comment when told that Manager Art Ross of Bruins was quoted as saying Monday that the injury resulted from a "savage and deliberate attack."

"I am afraid Arthur is building this up for Boston consumption," Frank Selke, Leafs manager, who was named by Ross as the instigator of the attack.

Town Planners Urge Educational, Recreation Centre

Tentative Preliminary Plan May Be Submitted Soon To City Council

Creation of an educational, recreational and youth training centre in the area bounded by 101 street, 108 avenue, 107 street and Kingsway was advocated by Prof. C. S. Burgess at a meeting of the Edmonton Town Planning Commission held Tuesday.

The commission recommended that the city architect be instructed to prepare a tentative preliminary plan showing what buildings and play areas may be grouped on this area with their possible relationships, and approximate sizes in order that the subject may be discussed in a definite and concrete manner.

Members of the commission appointed to confer with the school board and city council committees are: Professor Burgess, Ralph V. Bellamy, K.C., and W. J. Tree.

Text of Prof. Burgess' recommendation follows:

The Town Planning Commission desires to call the attention of the city council to the special opportunity offered by the area bounded by 101 street, 108 avenue, 107 street, and Kingsway for the creation of an educational, recreational and youth training centre.

In this area there are only a few scattered lots that are not city owned. At present the chief occupants are the Victoria High School, the Army and army huts, the Kingsway Fastball Park, the Canadian Legion War Services Building, and a portion of a block leased to the Central Community League.

All of these are educational, recreational or youth training uses. The question of the extension of the Victoria High School now under consideration includes the proposal for technical and commercial training and also the possibility of a public swimming pool and gymnasium in this locality. There is space for all these and probably still more public sports in this area.

NEED FOR LIBRARY In connection with technical and commercial training, there is need in this city for a good technical library. At present there is no facility for reference to the more highly technical or professional books and none to current technical journals.

Such a library on this site would serve not only students in the technical and commercial schools but also technicians and commercial and professional men in the city generally. It may further be noted that St. Joseph's (separate) High school is quite close to this site and that the St. Mary's High school will probably be moved from its present not very advantageous site on 103 street to the St. Joseph's site.

The area in question is readily accessible by street cars and buses from all parts of the city. A well laid out general scheme of buildings and playing fields would make of it an interesting and beautiful section of the city both from the point of view of Kingsway and of 101 street. Such a comprehensive scheme looking well forward to the future should be laid out now, to be gradually accomplished as opportunity is presented and as it can be financed.

PREPARE PLAN We recommend that the city architect be instructed to prepare a tentative preliminary plan showing what buildings and play areas may be grouped on this area with their possible relationship and approximate sizes in order that the subject may be discussed in a definite and concrete manner and that ideas on the subject may be clarified. Ultimately the project should be further developed by an architect specially entrusted with it. If not prepared for in some systematic manner a mere haphazard development will naturally take place and a fine opportunity will be thrown away.

Killed in Action

Pte. Richard B. Hatt, The Loyd Edmonton Regiment, who was killed in action in Italy Dec. 25, according to word received by his wife, Mrs. L. R. Hatt, who now resides with her parents in Vancouver. Pte. Hatt was well-known in Warburg and Alsike districts prior to his enlistment in October 1942. Besides his wife he is survived by one brother, Ernie Hatt, of Warburg. Two brothers-in-law are serving with the R.C.A.F., LAC. A. Pitliashin and AC1. V. Pitliashin.

Italians Use Aluminum For Making Shoes

Canadian housewives who donated their aluminum pots and pans and helped in the drive to salvage all kinds of this metal so essential to the war effort, will want no further proof of the importance of their efforts than the fact that the defeated Italians were not so helpful or industrious.

Miss Caroline Smith, a member of the Royal Bank of Canada staff here, has received a smart-looking pair of wedge-soled shoes from her brother in Italy, with thick platform soles made of solid aluminum. Cpl. Ackie Smith, who is fighting with the Canadians in Italy, sent a pair of these shoes to each of his three sisters and the sight of so much aluminum used in such an impractical manner has caused quite a furore among their friends.

This popular style of shoes also is sold in Canada but the Canadian edition is usually made of wood. The tops of the Italian-made shoes are made of different shades of felt and leather with straps around the ankles. The platform soles which are almost an inch thick in places and with a large cuban heel are solid light durable aluminum. Rubber, another commodity which in Canada has gone to war for the duration, is also used. Thin strips of hard rubber are fixed to the underside of the aluminum to cushion the impact of the feet.

Singer Against Barring Lieder From Programs

Differing sharply from those who would exclude German music from concert programs, Miss Anne Brown, New York soprano, and star of the late George Gershwin's opera, "Porgy and Bess," said that "no serious artist would think of having a program without German songs on it."

Accompanied by Yeo Mueller, Austrian-born pianist, and Fred M. Gee, Winnipeg impresario, Miss Brown arrived in Edmonton Wednesday to sing at a Celebrity Series concert sponsored by the Women's Musical Club.

She said that German lieder songs are her favorites. "They are beautifully written, sincere and serious, and to think they have anything to do with the Nazis is pure narrow-mindedness," she said. Of Scotch-Irish-French-Indian and Negro extraction Miss Brown is looking forward to seeing her first sunrise since she was a child. She said that in New York the sun is up before she is stirring, but with a sunrise about 10 a.m. here she is looking forward to seeing the first sunrise since she was a child.

Mr. Mueller was born in Austria and studied the piano at Praha, Czechoslovakia, and was for many years the coach at the conservatory there.

English Woman Doctor Carries On With Fortitude In North Country

L. V. Cairns, K.C., who was elected chairman of the Edmonton Public Library Board at a meeting held Tuesday. (See story Page 16.)

By MADEIRA LEVASON

Since the outbreak of war many stories have been told of the bravery and endurance of English women, who calmly withstood the German bombings, and showed the world how they could "take it."

Thousands of miles from her homeland another Englishwoman demonstrates every day of her life. This woman is Dr. Mary Jackson, of Keg River, who combines the jobs of keeping house, raising a family of four, two of her own children, and two British evacuee children, and doctoring hundreds of white people, trappers, Indians, and halfbreeds in that isolated area.

A tall, attractive woman with short-cropped grey hair, she gives the impression of quiet, capable strength. Her sense of humor is apparent in the way she jokes about her amazing activities. She arrived in Edmonton at the weekend and will stay several days. It is her first visit outside since the war.

A graduate in medicine from the University of Birmingham, Eng., she practiced her profession in a hospital there for several years before coming to Canada. "In 1929 the department of public health imported some English women doctors into Canada and I was one of them," she said. "I came out because I thought it would be different and exciting and well, my life has been different ever since. I do have some wild excitement at times, but it isn't what I expected, by any means," she laughed.

AT BATTLE RIVER Dr. Jackson was posted to Battle River as a public health doctor. A year and a half later she married Mr. Jackson, who operates a fur trading business at Keg River, and she went there "expecting to settle down and live like any other housewife." The nearest doctors to Keg River are at Fort Vermilion which is 120 miles north-east at Battle River. At first it was only in cases of emergency that Dr. Jackson was called upon to practice her profession, but gradually

Expect 8 Buses Early in March

Cheering news came Wednesday to Thomas Ferrier, street railway superintendent, when he was informed by the American company building eight trolley buses for the system that delivery could be expected much earlier than anticipated.

These buses, which were to have been delivered originally early in the fall of 1943, were delayed through a bottleneck in the manufacture of axles. It is now possible that they will reach here not later than March 1.

The buses, which will cost between $160,000 and $185,000 will be put into service on the Low Level and the 25 street trolley bus routes, and will replace at least four street cars for service on other city routes.

Under field conditions, 25,000 American soldiers wear out 800 pairs of shoes every day.

Efface Benito From Currency Italy, Algeria

Benito Mussolini, deflated jackal of Italy, has been effaced from Italian negotiable bills circulating in Africa and Italy. Miss Mary Wilson, of 11144 96 street, has received from a friend serving overseas a 5-franc bill which he obtained in Algeria and a 10-franc bill he received in Italy.

From both the reproductions of Mussolini had been effaced and the space left blank. The likeness of King Victor of Italy, however, were left on the bills.

Independents Name Delegates For Convention

Twelve delegates to the provincial convention of the Independent party, which will be held at Calgary next Monday, were named Tuesday night at a meeting of the Edmonton branch of the Independent group, held in the Corona hotel.

Delegates named were: Jack Webber, Con Johnson, C. Chapman, Ald. J. H. Ogilvie, Robert Chapman, Mrs. W. J. Ross, F. C. Jamieson, K.C., S. H. McCullagh, K.C., G. W. Auxier, T. B. Windross, Ald. F. C. Mitchell, and Mrs. J. H. Acheson.

The city of Edmonton is entitled to name 40 delegates to the convention and it is expected that others will be named later this week.

The executive of Edmonton Liberal Association will meet Friday night to discuss a letter from J. Percy Page, M.L.A., president of the Independent Citizens' Association, in which a suggestion is put forward to appoint a committee of three to assist in selection of delegates to the Calgary convention. If action is taken on this suggestion more delegates will be named.

In addition to delegates, four Edmonton members of the provincial executive of the Independents will attend the convention: Mr. Page, Hugh John Macdonald, K.C., M.L.A., W. K. Porter, president of the Edmonton branch, and Percy Herring.

Mr. Porter was chairman of the Tuesday meeting, which also discussed convention plans. Provincial party leadership was not discussed, as it has been announced this is to be one of the main items of business at the convention itself. Another item of paramount importance to be dealt with at the convention is the drafting of a provincial platform.

Premier, Wife Plan Speak at Meeting

Premier Ernest Manning is to speak at a Social Credit women's rally to be held in the Social Credit Hall, 9974 Jasper avenue, Thursday night. It was announced Wednesday. The premier's topic will be "The Challenge of '44," and Mrs. Manning also is scheduled to speak, on the subject of organization.

Community singing at the rally is to be led by Mrs. Gordon James, and Miss Margaret Robertson will sing. A convention report on the Social Credit Women's Auxiliary will be given by Mrs. C. W. Lee.

N. B. James, Social Credit M.L.A. for Edmonton, will be chairman and accompanist for the evening will be Mrs. C. Kendrick.

While the meeting is primarily for women, men are invited also.

Landlords Form Association Here

About 50 city landlords met Tuesday night in the Labor Hall to establish a Landlord's Protective Association to bring about greater understanding between landlords and tenants and more effective operation of rental regulations.

Membership in the organization is limited to landlords who pay taxes and those who have written approval of the property owner.

Landlords discussed their particular problems in regard to rental control and various grievances which are to be adjusted.

The grievances as well as a resolution protesting the present system of rental control will be forwarded to the Dominion government.

Guy Paterson, K.C., acting chairman of the committee, pointed out that the object was not to railroad rental control or to make more money for one class, but primarily to serve to the utmost in the critical wartime housing shortage.

Believe Two Boys Rob Bakery Till

Two boys who entered the Johnson Bakery, 10217 95 street, about 5 p.m. Tuesday, were suspected of stealing $15.57 from the till, according to city police.

The boys, whose ages were believed to be about 10 years, entered the shop and asked permission to use the telephone.

Little attention was paid to the boys, and not until a check of the cash was made after they had departed, was the money missed.

The Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION What do you think of the universal calendar plan, which would make all the months of the year equal in length and would guarantee that each date in the month fell on the same day as that date of the preceding month?

THE ANSWERS DOROTHY HOPE, secretary: I do not like the plan at all. It would make the calendar too monotonous. For example, the 14th of every month would fall on a Friday, say. I think it's nice to have a change, and I like the calendar just the way it is.

JEAN MOXON, clerk: I can't see why the present calendar should be changed. I'm not any expert on the subject, but it seems to me that the present one has worked satisfactorily, so why should we change it?

HELEN DUNSTON, student: I'm sure there must be some merit to such a plan, because it has been brought forward so often. It is one thing to propose such a scheme, and quite another to have it adopted, and it would be hopelessly impractical unless adopted universally.

Eye-Witness Tells Of Sneak Assault

An eye-witness story of the transformation of Pearl Harbor from one of the world's most peaceful and beautiful spots to a blazing and devastated victim of Japanese surprise assault on Dec. 7, 1941, was told to members of the Y.M.C.A. club at their meeting at the Y.M.C.A. Tuesday night.

Gilbert Scott, employed by an American firm here, related how he and his wife, living in Hawaii at that time, thought the loud explosions they heard were merely the usual naval target practice maneuvers.

On the drive back to Pearl Harbor, 30 miles from where they had lived, Mr. Scott said, the road was dotted with wrecked cars, riddled with machine gun bullets, and at Pearl Harbor, there was death and destruction everywhere.

He said that he felt that if the Japanese had followed their aerial assault by landing even 10,000 picked troops, they could have captured the Hawaiian Islands.

A-R-O-U-N-D THE TOWN

A cabin on the north side of the river, near White Mud creek was broken into and ransacked, according to city police. Nothing was stolen, but other places in the vicinity also had been broken into. An investigation is being made.

Open night will be held at the Edmonton Museum on Thursday from 8 to 10 p.m. It was announced Wednesday. An exhibit of paintings by members of the Alberta Society of Artists is now on exhibition, and the general public is invited to attend. Tea will be served during the evening by members of the Edmonton Art Museum Society.

Brig-Gen. James A. O'Connor, commanding general of the Northwest Service Command of the U.S. Army and Col. K. B. Cuth, chief of staff of the command, were visitors to Edmonton during the last few days. The U.S. officers made no statement concerning the future program of the United States army or government in the Northwest during 1944.

Work in Northland Is Proving Scarce

National Selective Service officers in Edmonton issued a warning Wednesday to workers who were making plans to go north in search of work.

The Dawson Creek office has found that workers are going to Dawson Creek without permits and officials there declare they do not require workers.

The officials report that some farmers have been moving north in the belief that there were plenty of jobs of construction and other types of work available.

Post Office Ends Christmas Activity

While Christmas has come and gone for residents of Edmonton, post office officials reported Wednesday that they "are just about cleaned up." The last of the "dead letter" Christmas mail is on its way to the dead letter office.

There were about 15,000 undeliverable Christmas cards received at the post office in 1943, more than 4,000 of which were returned to the senders, the rest sent to the dead letter office.

Very few Christmas parcels were undelivered, they added. These were checked by both the city sortation clerks and all the city sortation men who recognized names on their runs. In this way about 50 per cent of the packages, otherwise undeliverable, found their rightful addresses.

Officials again stressed the importance and value of the full return name and address of the sender.

"In cases where an address is incorrect or the parcel is undeliverable for any other reason," one official said, "the post office notifies the sender that the parcel is undeliverable and asks for instructions as to its disposal within a specified time."

Milder Weather Is Forecast Here

Temperature here continued to rise steadily over Monday and Tuesday. Maximum temperature reached Tuesday was 15 degrees above zero and the overnight low remained as high as 10 degrees. At 8:30 a.m. Wednesday the official reading was 17 degrees above zero. Probability that this spring-like weather will continue for a few days is shown in the forecast for Wednesday and Thursday which is "fair and comparatively mild."

One of the many protest groups of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, the committee will report to the next meeting of the Edmonton Trades and Labor Council.

The committee consists of executive members of the council and 14 appointed delegates of labor unions.

The wages control order, known as Order-in-Council, P.C. 9384, aims at tighter stabilization of wages.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

U.S.O. Helps Girls Obtain "Nice" Dates

Plenty of Lonely Boys, Shy, Reserved, Not Wanting to Mix With Everybody, Would Enjoy Company Of Interesting 18-Year-Olds

DEAR MISS DIX: We are a group of 18 years old, in our last year of high school. We have average looks, but we never have any dates like other girls our age and have given up hope of ever having any attention from the boys we know. So we would like to have your opinion on the following questions:

1. Will it be all right if we get some nice soldiers and keep them as friends? This is the only way we can think of getting out with boys. 2. Do you think that by doing this we would obtain a little experience on how to handle boys? 3. Do you think that by going out with soldiers we will be able to compete at least a little bit with other girls after the war is over, and thus have some chance of not being old maids?

18 and DISGUSTED
ANSWER: You have a good idea

McKenney On Bridge

By WM. E. MCKENNEY, America's Card Authority

Mrs. McKenney and her team-mates, Mrs. Gordon B. Hirsch and Mrs. Bertram Lebar, Jr., of New York and Miss Florence J. Stratford of Cleveland, finished second in the national women's team-of-four championship this year.

Mrs. McKenney called my attention to a situation that comes up quite often. When she and her partner reached six hearts on the hand shown today, West made the mistake of doubling. Now Mrs. McKenney (North) reasoned that West must hold the ace of clubs and a heart trick; therefore, she correctly bid six no trump. Had there been no double of six hearts she might have passed, but the double put her into the correct contract. Of course, West's double of six no trump was very unwise.

And she has left me. I have done everything in the world to try to win her back. I plead with her and tell her how much I love her and need her. At the same time, I listen to her. Tells me I have killed her love and that she doesn't trust me. She means everything in the world to me and without her I have no desire to live. What shall I do? Live alone and keep our house in case she does forgive me? Or should I give everything up and abandon all hope?

A REPENTANT HUSBAND.

Answer: Paying a high price for your dance, aren't you, Mister? But you are not the only man who throws away the love of a good woman for a woman he doesn't care a penny's worth for, and who breaks up a happy and peaceful home for a silly flirtation. We can have some pity and respect for the married man who is swept off of his feet by a great, overpowering passion for a strange woman; who realizes that for the first time he knows what love really is and that the only feeling he ever had for his wife was just a pale liking, and who lets his emotions drive him into being an unfaithful husband. But we can only mock at the folly of a man who has a wife he admires and loves and does not want to lose, and an ideal home, yet who risks it all for a few thoughtless kisses from a harlot. But it happens so often.

Yours is one of the innumerable tragedies that have been brought about by women going into war work. It disrupts the home and the inevitable consequences follow. The husband comes home to a place that is no longer a home, just an empty shell of a house in which there is no warmth, no life, no comfort, no good meals, no welcoming wife.

The man gets tired of lonely evenings, of having to cook his own food and make up his own bed and having nobody to talk to, and he starts out in search of company and finds the Other Woman. When the cat is away the mice will play, and no woman who has given up her home for a job can help but know that she has been accessory to the crime if her husband philanders.

In your case your wife has had her pride hurt just as much as her heart, and you must give them both time to recover. The chances are that she still loves you and will come back to you if you keep the home and persevere in making your show of repentance. Why don't you join the army? That would make a master appeal to her affection for you and convince her of your sincerity.

GRAND WIFE

DEAR MISS DIX: My wife was all that a husband could ever hope to have. She was a grand partner, a fine cook and housekeeper, and pleasant to live with, but since we got into war work we haven't seen much of each other, because I work days and she works nights. After being alone every evening for four months I began to get lonely and bored and eventually I fell for the phone calls of another woman. It started as a thrill and after a while I got tired of it. But my wonderful wife in the meantime had found out about it.

Gideon Planish

By Sinclair Lewis

THE STORY: Gideon Planish is an English professor at Kinnikinnick College in 1921, where he is well-esteemed but vaguely dissatisfied with his lot. He feels he is meant for better things. He would like to be married but his sweetheart, Teckla Schum, refuses to admit his brilliant future. He falls in love with Peony Jackson, freshman.

VIII

ON that evening of early October there was neither harvest moon nor the wine stains of afterglow, but only dusty air and an uneasy brilliance from the arc light on the station platform. Professor Planish was wriggling on a bench in the sick little pass, feeling vaguely foolish yet trembling with the coming glory. He tried to look at a line of flat-looking flatcars, at a bumptious little caboose, but he could really see nothing till, miraculously, Peony was crossing the tracks, carefully stepping over the rails.

She said in a small voice, "Hello."

He slipped his arm under her coat, he whispered, "My girl—my girl!" and he kissed her lips. "Do you know that I'm in love with you?"

She said comfortably, "Oh, you couldn't be."

"Well, darn it, I am!"

"That's good."

"Are you in love with me at all?"

"Sure. I have been for almost a year. Oh, yes. I came down from Faribault with Daddy, to see about my entrance, and we sneaked into your rhetoric class. Dad said you were a great spellbinder."

"And what did you think?"

"I thought you were cute. Oh, all right, all right, don't look so cross. I thought you were wonderful."

"You know, all this is extra-ordinary. What are you going to do?"

"Do, Professor? Why, as I seem to have led you captive already—with practically no expense for lipstick—we might get married."

"Oh, yes, Married."

"You've heard of it?"

"I certainly have, and we're going to be married, at the proper time, but I want you to finish at least two years of college."

"Why?"

"Oh, to be prepared to take a great place in the world. I'm not going to stay in a dump like Kinnikinnick all my life."

"I should hope not! But why can't I be married and still go to school?"

"Against the college rules here for an undergraduate to get married."

"Why, the old meanies! Anyway, there's no rule against being engaged. Will I do some ring-flaunting?"

It had come to him that if Teckla heard of his being engaged, she would be annoyed, and that her father was chairman of the Kinnikinnick Board of Trustees, who could make the place itchy for a professor, contract or no. He picked up Peony's hand and kissed it and put it carefully back, and told her about Teckla.

It had never been so nearly easy for him to be nearly honest. He asserted that Teckla was a good and helpful soul, and Peony did nothing more than snarl, "I don't trust any woman!" and, at the end, demanded, "But now you're not even going to have tea, call it tea, with that woman any more, are you?"

Certainly he wasn't. How could she thin of such a thing?

"Gideon! If her father and the trustees are likely to cut up—maybe get us scandalized—why do we need to stay here? Maybe it's time for you to beat it, on and upward. Excelsior!"

"Maybe it is, at that. I'd like to have a job in Columbia University."

"But I see you doing something more active than teaching, Gideon. Some day maybe you'll be governor or a senator."

"Now isn't that strange, your speaking about that! I've always had a hunch I could do something big in politics—get to the top—and of course do a lot of good for people."

"Sure you could! I know it! Oh, Gideon, isn't it wonderful!"

He called on Teckla Schum.

He was sorry for himself that he should have to feel sorry for Teckla. He plunged:

"Honey, I guess the kindest way would be for me to come right out and—"

She said calmly, "Gid, I imagine you've come to tell me that you've finally managed to fall for some girl. Is that it?"

"Something like that. I'm afraid. But listen, dear: it's because I'm a lonely scholar and you accustomed to a woman's tender care that I ever began looking around—"

He was wondering whether he could get away with it.

She ignored his craft. "I don't want to know about your girl, and I shan't snoop, G, with my blessing, if you still care for it."

"I do care for it, and I do need it. Teckla, I won't try to be proud—"

"Is that a crack?"

"No, honest to God it isn't! I mean, I can't afford to be proud, because if your father, as a trustee, got a down on me, it would probably ruin me, whereas if he thought it was you that—Don't you see?"

"I suppose that's fair. He might think you'd been trifling with the poor widow-woman. I'll have to tell him I threw you out—"

He had always been a good hand at Seeing the Proper People. He was calling upon the president's wife at 5 o'clock; he was drinking tea, with no special distaste, and being eloquent.

Dear lady, he explained, he was throwing himself upon her mercy; he was turning to her as the only human being who would understand him. He was in love. (But purely.) Believe it or not (only she'd better believe it if she didn't want to mangle his heart), the first thing that had attracted him to this girl (no, way, he'd tell her the name later) was that she was so much like Mrs. Bull; the same aristocratic manner, the same womanly sympathy, the same glimpse of intelligence and, if he might be so brave, the same agate eyes.

But, and here were the old accustomed woes, and Abelard and Heloise, and Rutherford B. Hayes and the postmistress, his girl was an undergraduate, here in Kinnikinnick, and according to college regulations, and possibly the Bible and the State Constitution of Iowa, if they were carried, she would have to drop out of college and less agile minds might even hint that there had been goings-on inconceivable in a rhetoric professor. And what would a lofty Puritan like President T. Austin Bull think about a teacher who

"You just leave that man Austin to me!" beamed Mrs. Bull. "Now what is your girl's name?"

They were married, Peony and Gid, in Easter vacation, 1922, with the Bishop starring. But if Peony played nothing more than ingenuit at the wedding, it was she who took the lead when they returned to Kinnikinnick, and she who chose a gold-and-scarlet cabinet to brighten up their cottage, and Professor Planish was so proudly in love that he liked it.

War Kitchen

The feelings of gratitude should be used, not tossed into the garbage can, because they contain much Vitamin C.

The peel of oranges, lemons, and other citrus fruits contains about three times as much of this vitamin as the pulp and juice. Adding thin slices or gratings of the peel to sauces, spreads and desserts will not only give an orange or lemon flavor but will add Vitamin C as well.

In making candied peel or sweet marmalade in which the peel is parboiled and then the water discarded, some of the Vitamin C is lost with the water. However, peel may be sliced or grated and added (with no previous cooking) to applesauce, and other sauces, to spread of various kinds, to most fruit desserts and even to quick breads.

The peel of apples is five times as rich in Vitamin C as the flesh. Scientists report that Vitamin C is more concentrated in the outside of fruit, probably because the outside receives more light. Sunlight seems to have a favorable effect on Vitamin C though this is not the so-called "sunlight vitamin."

Knox United Church W.A. Raises $1.181 During 1944

At the annual meeting of the Knox United Church Women's association, held recently, it was reported that the last year had been successful. The treasurer reported that the sum of $1,181.62 had been raised by the various groups. Reports for the year were given by Mrs. A. I. Millar, Mrs. N. Cruickshank, Mrs. H. G. Robertson, Mrs. D. W. Goodman and Mrs. P. Hardisty.

The Rev. E. G. Turnbull conducted the installation of officers when Mrs. A. J. Kent was returned to the office of president; Mrs. E. G. Turnbull and Mrs. G. A. MacDonald are honorary presidents; Mrs. G. Campbell, past president; Mrs. W. H. Huxley, 1st vice-president; Mrs. L. Ferrier, 2nd vice-president; Mrs. W. Collier, 3rd vice-president; Mrs. K. W. Reikie, 4th vice-president; Mrs. A. I. Millar, secretary; Mrs. N. Cruickshank, treasurer; Mrs. P. Hardisty, program; Mrs. R. W. Bradley, flowers; Mrs. J. W. Martin, pianist; Mrs. T. Rea, press; Mrs. S. A. Duncan, corresponding secretary; Mrs. D. W. Goodman, Red Cross; Mrs. J. M. Taylor and Mrs. T. A. Lendrum, social; Mrs. Cora T. Casselman, M.P., League of Nations.

The women of the congregation have given splendid support to the local branch of the Red Cross society. In addition to knitting and sewing in their own homes they have met in the basement of the church, twice a week throughout the year to quilt and sew under the leadership of Mrs. G. Campbell and Mrs. R. B. Law. As a result 745 knitted garments have been turned in to the Red Cross and 236 articles of clothing and bedding, including 83 quilts. In addition the women bought the material for 90 other articles, including 40 quilts, which were also turned over to the society.

• Yes, that's a slogan tuned to our times. It's more than a catch-phrase, too—it's a mighty good rule to live by,
especially now when the nation needs every ounce of our energy. If you're ill, as a good Doctor and, of course, bring his prescription here
for careful compounding.
